PITIFUL STORIES OF SUFFERING IN CHINA

Starving People Cooking the Leaves of Trees—Mothers
Throw Away Children

Washington, D. C., April 1.—The United States transport Buford, bearing the relief supplies to the starving
people in China which were collected in this country under the auspices of the American National Red Cross and the Seattle Commercial Club, has arrived in Shanghai according to a cablegram received by the officials of the American Red Cross. The vessel will proceed immediately to Nanking and "chunkiang to unload her cargo.

Announcement of the arrival of the American transport in Chinese waters reached Washington almost simultaneously with mail advices to the state department from Shanghai and Nanking detailing pitiful tales of the indescribable suffering of the starving millions.

Mr. Bostock, a missionary, writing from Pochow, says the suffering poor
have reached the extreme of misery.
A few months ago they were living on wheat bran. With this exhausted, they have resorted to cooking leaves of trees and even simple dry wheat chaff.
Barefooted children, all but naked, are freezing cold days, pitifully screaming, "I'm hungry, I'm hungry," present a common street scene.

Mothers, no longer able to provide food for their offspring, throw them away, probably in the frantic hope that compassion will force some one to recue them. Men, a few months ago
able-bodied farmers, had been reduced to rags shivering with cold and facing starvation.

TO BRING WITNESSES FROM IDITAROD

Trial of Men in Connection With Humboldt Robbery
Will Be Delayed

Portland, April 1.—It is likely to be months before James Whalen and Charles Barrett are tried in the state circuit court in connection with the Humboldt gold bullion robbery. Deputy United States District Attorney Evans
visited State District Attorney Cameron yesterday to have an understanding regarding Alaska witnesses who are to testify.

The three witnesses will be obliged to make the journey from Iditarod to Pacheco, Alaska, by dog team; from there to Seattle by steamer and thence by train to Portland. On account of the long journey Mr. Evans thought it would be unwise to have the case set for trial as early as the accused men seek.

That more than $20,000 of the stolen
bullion is secreted in or near Portland
is the assertion of District Attorney Cameron. He bases the declaration upon information gathered at the time of the indictment of the accused men, and on the statements made yesterday by officials of the insurance company which covered the loss. Proof is in his hands, Mr. Cameron says, that at one time the whole or a great part of the bullion was deposited in the safe of a Portland merchant, but it is not there now.

An effort will be made to have Orville Cavaness brought to Portland from San Francisco in connection with the effort being made by Secret Agent
Connell to find the lost bullion.

WROTE BLACKMAILING LETTERS

Chicago, April 1.—Philip Purpur, who confessed yesterday that he had written
more than a score of blackmailing
letters over a "Black Hand" signature,
was turned over last night to the United States authorities. Secret service men will try to determine whether Purpur can be connected with a recent letter written to United States District Judge Landis, threatening him
with the vengeance of the "Black Hand." If Gianni Alonzi, an Italian being tried for blackmail, was not acquitted.

The letter to Judge Landis was followed by the discovery near his desk
of a harmless "bomb," composed chiefly of muckluge. The bomb at first was treated as a joke, but later secret service men declared they believed it was planned by the writer of the letter in order to show his ability to reach the United States judge with a dangerous bomb. Purpur, when arraigned before United States Commissioner Foote, repeated his confession and was held
in bonds of $5,000.

It developed during the examination of Purpur that James E. Stuart, chief of the postal inspectors of the Chicago district, also has received a death threat in the Alonzi trial.

"Fruit-a-tives" Will Cure Rheumatism

McMillan's Corner, Ont., Sept. 30, 1910.

"Your remedy, 'Fruit-a-tives,' is a perfect panacea for Rheumatism. For years I suffered distressing pain from sciatic rheumatism, being laid up several times a year, and not being able to work at anything. I went to different doctors who told me there was no use doing anything. It would pass away.

Recently, about two years ago, I got 'Fruit-a-tives' and they cured me.
"Since then I take them occasionally and keep free from pain. I am satisfied that 'Fruit-a-tives' cured me of Rheumatism and they will cure anyone who takes them. JOHN B. McDONALD."

"Fruit-a-tives" is the greatest cure
for Rheumatism, Sciatica and Lumbago
in the world.

"Fruit-a-tives" cures, because like fruit juice it purifies the blood, regulates kidneys, bowels and skin—and this keeps the whole system free of uric acid. Take "Fruit-a-tives" and you will find instant relief and a prompt cure.

REICHSTAG IS IN FAVOR OF ARBITRATION

Resolution Adopted Calling on Government to Make Treaties

Berlin, April 1.—The Reichstag, by a large majority, yesterday rejected the Socialist motion calling on the government to take "immediate steps leading to an international agreement concerning universal limitation of armaments
and the abolition of the right of capture at sea."

Earlier the Reichstag adopted a resolution "to request the chancellor to declare his willingness to enter mutual negotiations with other great powers
as soon as propositions concerning a simultaneous and equal limitation of armaments are made by any one power."

This resolution received the support of the Socialists and Radicals, a majority of the Centre party and a portion of the Imperialist and Conservative parties.

The Reichstag also adopted a resolution calling on the government to make arbitration treaties with other nations
modelled on the lines of the Anglo-American treaty.

The Liberal press expresses decided disappointment at Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg's speeches in the Reichstag Thursday. The Tageblatt regrets the chancellor's blunt tone in response to the speech of the British foreign secretary, Sir Edward Grey, but thinks this was due to his lack of diplomatic skill, rather than to conscious opposition. Referring to the Anglo-American arbitration project, the same newspaper says that it is not too late for Germany to form the third member of an Anglo-Saxon league.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, April 1.—John
N. McDowell was sentenced by Judge Dunn to imprisonment for life for the murder of his wife, Sarah E. McDowell, at Springston. He stood trembling like a leaf and almost collapsed when the sentence was pronounced.

Apparently there is little hope for the accused man, if the remarks of the court count for anything.

"I give you a life imprisonment sentence," said the court, "because there is one chance in a thousand that you may be innocent, but personally I do not have any doubt of your guilt."

The court remanded the prisoner to the charge of the sheriff, with instructions that he be taken to Boise at once.
Arguments for a new trial will be made here the first of next week, probably on Monday.

A too hot gas stove oven can be cooled

SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, April 1.— Count Zeppelin's new airship made a successful maiden flight here.

The craft replaces the passenger airship, Deutschland, which after a few thrilling exhibitions, came to grief
amid the trees of the Teutoburgian forests on June 23 last.

The motors and the vertical steering planes of the Deutschland were saved
from the wreck and utilized in the construction of her successor.

VANCOUVER ROMANCE.

Vancouver, April 1.—Miss Rose Dural
appeared in the dock and in tears yesterday before the police magistrate, and was about to be sentenced for stealing $20 when her sweetheart, Geo.
Spink, from the spectator's gallery in the court, asked the police magistrate to stay his hand. Spink explained that he was the victim of a deep attachment
for the girl, and wished to marry her there and then. If stern justice would accuse, the police magistrate promptly agreed. Rev. J. McLeod, a Presbyterian minister, was summoned to perform the ceremony. F. Hart, police court clerk, gave the bride away and the police nation acted as maid of honor.
The ceremony over, the matrimonial blessing was given the couple, who promptly left town on their honeymoon.

WARD 4. WARD 5.
H. A. Munn, E. E. Heath, Hugh Kennedy, O. Roberts
Pres. Secy. Pres. Secy.

West as well as the great central plains
have spoken, and there has been but one verdict. Some public bodies have expressed opposite opinions, but these have not been representative. Some journals have opposed the agreement in a most extravagant way. They have kept up a running fire upon the government, but their ammunition has been mere fireworks purchased by the interests which think they may be injured.

The opinions of such men as W. P.
Hinton, General Passenger Agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, may be taken as indicating the real condition of affairs. Mr. Hinton has travelled all through the West in connection with his duties and has been south as far as California. The fact that he found many people planning to come here from the United States to engage in fruit growing disposes of the arguments of the horticulturists against the agreement. In Canada wherever he went he found no valid objection made to reciprocity. Doubtless there were quibblers such as are to be found everywhere. Their arguments are easily answered.

Mr. Hinton is an optimist. He is a business man, and as such he sees that the country as a whole will benefit by the lowering of the Canadian tariff and by the increased markets which will be secured by the lowering of the duties on the American side. We stand to gain from each. Some people have argued that if we had waited we could have secured the United States market
without having to lower our own tariff.
That may be true or it may not, but
at any rate it would not have met the situation. It would not have given us cheap food. What we in British Columbia desired more than anything else
was a reduction in the price of food supplies, especially in the staple foods.
This we shall secure by the agreement,
and that is the chief reason why the mass of the people support it.

NATIONAL PROSPERITY.

Building figures continue to increase. While the rate of growth for the month of March was one hundred thousand dollars more than for the corresponding month of last year, it would have been much larger but for the fact that there is a slight stringency in the local money market,
which is keeping some building operations in abeyance for a short time.
So many people find it profitable to invest their money in property that there are not enough left who are willing to take the seven per cent.
rate, which is all borrowers care to pay. There are a great many new buildings planned, and a number of these will be commenced during the present month.

The realty movement is an interesting one. Towards the end of last year there was a considerable flurry
in inside properties. Prices advanced rapidly, but there was hardly any outside buying. Then began the suburban movement, which resulted in an immense lot of transfers of residential properties both inside the city limits and for some distance out. This was followed or accompanied by a desire for farms, some buying with the intention of holding until they could subdivide, and others acquiring properties for purely agricultural or horticultural purposes. One man told of selling four farms within a few days, and others have also been busy in the same line.

Really brokers are still very busy.
The new subdivisions are attracting much attention, but there is also a general demand for land, which

which will be followed by people looking for houses. There is considerable building in progress, but not anything like enough to supply the demand which will soon be made.

People are only just beginning to move this way. There is a large influx expected from Great Britain as well as from the United States and Eastern Canada, and all of the people will need houses. It may be expected that this class of property will be in great demand before very long.

The outlook for the future is very bright indeed. On every hand there is talk of industries and movements
which will mean much to this city
and which will increase the population at a very great rate. As a recent visitor to Victoria confidently expressed himself: "The population must double itself within the next five years, and then the city will be growing and will continue to grow faster than it is doing now."

GERMANY AGAIN.

Is the dream of Cecil Rhodes to be fulfilled? Is there to be a great Anglo-Saxon alliance, with Germany as one of the parties thereto? The proposal does not yet seem feasible, and yet the meagre dispatches which we receive seem to indicate possibilities along this line. Foreseeing Germans realize that once Great Britain, the United States and France are united by treaty it will be much more difficult for Germany to join without a lowering of dignity. An national dignity is the one thing above
all others for which the German imperialist lives, the barrier would be almost impassable. It seems that while the German government has placed itself in opposition to any limitation of armaments the Reichstag has passed a resolution favoring the same. If the government were British it would have
at once resigned as a result of what was really a vote of want of confidence.
Being German, no such result need be anticipated.

No group of nations could expect to do the policing of the world without Germany's aid, unless the latter country were completely isolated. As the Germans are too astute to allow themselves to be isolated, the only hope of a universal peace pact is that Germany
will see her way to join the other nations to bring about the much desired
end.

Germany is one of the leading nations
in education, industry, scientific research, invention, trade and commerce.
Her people are blood relations of the Anglo-Saxons. At one time there was the very best of feeling between the two nations. Their ruling house is closely related to ours, and the people of the two countries have fought side
by side on more than one battlefield.
There seems to be every reason why a closer relationship still should exist.

Manitoba Free Press: "The bringing about of such an agreement between the British Empire and the United States is an objective earnestly to be desired and worked for;
and that improved relations between this country and the country to the south will tend to help in that direction. It is surely not one of the least of the considerations in favor of the reciprocity agreement which has been negotiated between the two governments."

The Montreal Witness is again appealing to its readers for help, and threatens to drop out of the field if the paper does not receive a larger measure of support. Competition is very keen in Montreal and the Witness has been losing money for some years past. If it fails to pay it will probably be sold, and its new owners
will then conduct it along other lines.

The Quebec government has decided not to allow land speculating in that province. It will sell lands to bona fide settlers only. That is the right policy. What we want is settlers, not speculators.

porter has joined H. M. C. S. Noble

once got the habit of reporting it will be difficult for him to give it up altogether.

MEN OF HART'S RIVER RECALL CAMPAIGNS

Eight of the Veterans Now Living Here Meet on Anniversary

Eight out of the fourteen members of the Canadian Mounted Rifles residing in Victoria or nearby assembled in
A. J. Brace's home last evening on the ninth anniversary of the battle of Hart's River, in which they took part.

In addition to the host those present were: S. J. Hall, A. R. Nex, M.
Schamehorn, Mounted Constable S. J.
Beckton, Constable W. B. Baxter, Trumpeter Donaghy, R. C. G. A., and W. C. Warren. A pleasant evening was spent in recalling memories of the campaign, going over the official reports of the war, examining photographs and reading letters of regret from comrades who were unable to attend, as well as letters from the fathers of men who gave their lives for their country. The fathers of Sergt.
Perry Evans and Khlesley wrote.

During the evening the following message from Colonel Wm. Hamilton
Merritt, commanding the Governor-General's Body Guard, Toronto, and who was second in command of the C.
M. R. was read:

"As senior surviving officer of our old regiment please convey affectionate regards to comrades. As officer commanding first cavalry brigade, sending herewith wishes of good-fellowship to brothers in arms in West. May peace and goodwill prevail, but first and above all loyalty to and safety of our great empire."

The most kindly feelings are entertained for their old leader by the veterans, and they went over the history of the C. M. R. G. last night, and recalled Colonel Merritt's part in the formation of the C. M. R. and the chance thus given them to see service.
Colonel Merritt was largely responsible for the sending of this last battalion, which saw a good deal of warfare in the six months they were out.

Mr. Brace served refreshments, which were voted ahead of hard tack and bully beef.

Has Been Made

(Times Leased Wire.)
Washington, D. C., April 1.—The government prosecutors to-day are considering the preliminary work in the approaching prosecution of thirty-four individuals and fourteen corporations, comprising the "bath tub trust." It was predicted that court proceedings would be under way next week. All the defendants will be called to answer indictments, no promise of immunity having been made by the department of justice officials.

LAST WORDS OF THE LATE CAPTAIN JAMES

Captain Riley, of the Madge, Spoke to Him at William Head

The dome of silence in which the loss of the Sechelt is shrouded shows no signs of breaking as a result of the inquiry that is at present being prosecuted by Captain C. Eddie at the institution of the federal authorities.
Ignorance as to the exact extent of the tragedy serves only to preserve its keenness, and the uncertainty and anxiety engendered and sustained in this way will probably outlive its official record.

Captain Riley was undoubtedly the last person on earth with whom Captain James held converse, and on account of the fact alone the evidence of the old tar who chaperones the Madge is of compelling interest. He saw the Sechelt on the day of the disaster at William Head, having gone down to the wharf to see if the captain had brought him a paper from the city. At the same time he took the opportunity of explaining to the captain one or two of the intricacies of making a landing at that point, not with a view to telling the captain his business, because he knew that that was unnecessary, but because he thought such an explanation might be helpful to one who was not very familiar with the water in that district. He only saw four persons on the boat, the captain, a passenger, and two deck-hands. He had a good view of the boat, but as he did not pay any particular attention he could not swear as to whether she was carrying any deck cargo or not.

Captain Eddie endeavored to get a definite answer on that point but the witness was not in a position to give it.
In a few terse sentences Captain Riley told him he received word of the disaster and how he set out to look for the Sechelt.

A STRIKING CONTRAST.

Some eastern papers have been commenting strongly upon the action of a prominent stock life insurance company in voting a bonus of half a million dollars to their stockholders, every dollar of which came from the earnings of the policy-holders' money.

In striking contrast to this, The Mutual Life of Canada last year earned over half a million dollars in profits, every dollar of which goes to the policy-holders, who alone receive all profits.

The insuring public are becoming more and more alive to the importance of investing their money in a company which has no interest to consider or care for except that of its policy-holders.—A company in which the policy-holders own everything, control everything and get everything; such a company is The Mutual Life of Canada, one of the oldest and strongest companies, and the only company of its kind in Canada. R. L. Drury, local manager; F. M. McGregor, special agent; offices, 918 Government street.

—The ladies of the Church of Our Lord some time ago announced that they would hold their annual Easter sale shortly before the dawn of that great festival. The date fixed is Tuesday next, April 4. The sale is to be in the schoolroom adjoining the church and will be as attractive as its many predecessors conducted under the same auspices. There will be tables for fancy and plain work, candy and Easter novelties. Tea served during the afternoon will form a special and refreshing feature of the programme. All are cordially invited to be present. The doors will open at 2.30 o'clock.

BUILDING FIGURES FOR MONTH OF MARCH

Show Tremendous Development and Indicate Even Greater Advances

That Victoria is at present enjoying a spell of unusual activity is a fact that requires neither statement nor emphasis; it can be discerned in the optimistic expression of her people, and in the light, elastic and responsive atmosphere. These indications are but the reflex of the more substantial signpost that illuminates the commercial factor.

The best key to the commercial factor, or one of its many keys at any rate, is the building operations and prospective building operations that have made the month of March a record one. Taking the first three months of the year the building figures give a big start to similar combinations of other years. To date the value of the buildings for which permits have been issued is $614,340 as against $525,505 for the same period last year.

The figures for each month this year as compared with the same months of the two previous years were:

	1911	1910	1909
Jan.	$151,455	$128,985	$78,080
Feb.	182,940	151,760	122,680
Mar.	279,945	244,760	121,540
Total	$614,340	$525,505	$322,400

With the single exception of last July the month of March, which has just gone off in the great chase of time, had the biggest total in the history of the city. This fact would seem to indicate that even greater figures will be returned this year. During the month the number of permits issued was 121 compared with 64 for the same month last year. For the three months the permits totalled 275 as against 187 for a year ago.

—The council last night approved the purchase of the lease from John Haggerty of property recently bought by the city for the Spring Ridge High school site. The property was owned by Lim Bang, a Chinese merchant, who had given John Haggerty a lease of which there is eight months to run. There are 23,000 yards of sand on the property which become the property of the city. The price paid for the lease is $11,300.

—The following settlements of the arbitration in connection with the Fort street widening were reported and adopted by the city council last night: Balmoral hotel, $17,100; Dr. Holden, $2,350; Dr. Jones will be tendered a new offer of $9,630 and if he accepts the same the arbitration proceedings will be completed. Dr. Jones received permission from the court to reopen the matter when he had been offered $4,890.

—A sufficient supply of paving blocks for the paving of View street were ordered to be purchased by the council last night from the Michigan Puget Sound Lumber Company. The price is $14.75 per thousand. The council had power to purchase blocks and could not deal with a contract for blocks necessary on other streets. The View Street contract now authorized will pave View street from Douglas to Government streets.

—J. Miyagawa, a Japanese, was presented in the Police court this morning, and remanded until Monday, on a charge of obtaining money by fraud. He is alleged to have represented himself as agent for the Yokohama Greenhouse Company, and the police hold a letter from the company giving the names of nine people, or firms, in Victoria, who have been victimized by the man. They allege he has been paid money for orders and that the orders have never been sent to them, and that the firm has never authorized accused to act for it. His business card has a Vancouver address also, and he was arrested last night by Detectives Handley and Hutchinson.

JUDGING COMPLETED AT THE BENCH SHOW

Specials Awarded Last Night
—Prizes to Be Presented
This Evening

The judging of the dogs in the bench show was completed last night, and now the prize winners may be seen in their stalls adorned with ribbons and surrounded by cards, telling their class and what rank they take.

The awarding of the special prizes in the evening attracted a big crowd of people, for several unbeaten champions were being shown for the first time during the show. Through an error in transcription it was announced yesterday that Harry Ella's champion Irish setter, Prince, was beaten by Killarney Boy in the open class. This was not the case, for although Prince was entered in the class he did not compete. In the specials Prince conclusively proved that there is no dog in the province which can beat him. As soon as the famous Irish setter took his place on the judging stand the judge handed the ribbon to Mr. Ella.

Among the most interesting of last night's features was the picking of the best sporting dog in the show. Some of the most valuable animals on exhibition were entered. Swallow, one of Hickford and Withers' English setters; Camosun Wuffie, a Scotch terrier from the Central Park kennels, Vancouver; Jesmond, Pearl and Victoria, two champion cocker spaniels owned by J. W. Creighton, and Marco Meddler of Orme, a wire haired fox terrier, shown by Mr. Bruce. The last mentioned was awarded the prize.

J. W. Creighton's cocker spaniel made a clean sweep of everything in their class. Ribbon after ribbon was presented to Gladys Creighton, and every award drew a round of applause from the spectators.

A comical sight was presented when the miscellaneous class came on. Only two dogs were entered, a tall, rangy wolf hound and the Mexican chihuahua. The latter is only a pocket edition of a dog, and the contrast between the two was extremely ludicrous.

RACING SEASON.

Arrangements are now well under way for a successful racing season this summer. The British Columbia Thoroughbred Association, the Vancouver Jockey Club and the Victoria Jockey Club are now sending out their entry blanks and lists of stakes. The stakes run from $500 to $1,000 in value and are thirteen in number.

There are said to be fewer suicides among miners than among any other class of workmen.

LOCAL SCHOOL BOYS RETURN VICTORIOUS

High School Basketball Team
Defeats Sidney in Interesting Game

After a hard and strenuous game of basketball at Sidney last night, the local high school boys defeated the Sidney quintette. It was a good exhibition from start to finish, but nevertheless, the scholars had the game well in hand at all times, and won by 12 to 4. The match was clean and free from rough work, with the exception of one occasion towards the end, when Steele and his check tried to start something. Redge McKean refereed in an impartial manner.

The high school team was as follows: Guards, Stewart and Clarke; centre, Betterton; forwards, Woods and Steele.
After the game a dance was held and the students arrived home in the early hours of the morning, thinking that a trip up to Sidney would not be inappropriate every week-end.

ABOUT BASEBALL

The Portland Northwestern league team is not satisfied with the name Roadsters. Neither will they submit to being called the Web-footers, so that the Portland fans are now scratching their heads in an effort to bring to light some cognomen suitable for a ball team. A prize of $25 has been offered for the best suggestion.

Twenty of the 36 players that compose the Cleveland American league, squad are over six feet tall. Pitcher Falkenburg tops the bunch with six feet five inches, while Addie Joss is next in line, being six feet three inches in height. Knaupp is the shortest man on the team, measuring five feet seven inches.

George Stovall will continue as captain of the Cleveland brigade. He has been field boss practically all the time since Lajoie quit being manager-captain back in 1909.

Manager Nick Williams, of the Portland team, expects to carry about five or six pitchers on his Northwestern squad this year.

Rudy Schwenk, sold by Louisville to Spokane, has decided to quit "hold-outing" and report.

Blackbourne, of the Chicago White Sox, will be the "millionaire kid" of the baseball world within a week. Just to make the title good, the infielder of the White Sox will have about twice a million and will force Lew Moren, of the Cincinnati National league club to take a back seat. Blackbourne will be able to refer to Moren as a "piker" in the financial world. It is said by next Friday, the famous Priestman-Blackbourne estate in which is involved money and property to the value of $12,000,000, will have been settled, and Russell Blackbourne and his father, William P. Blackbourne, will divide between them about one-fifth of the vast property. This money comes to Blackbourne from his grandmother.

Fred Toney, the giant youngster of the Chicago Cubs' twirling staff, will be a wonder the coming season, if half of the reports about his ability are true. There is always some youngster pitcher that develops into the sensation of the season, and according to the opinion of some of the best posted critics, the young Kentuckian is in line for that honor the coming season. King Cole proved the star of last summer's crop of new twirlers and the celebrated slab artist was entitled to the big headlines. If Chance can get another youngster as successful from the start off as Cole, he will indeed be a lucky manager.

TENNIS MEETING.

Season to Open Soon—Dates for Tournament Decided on.

The tennis season will open in Victoria in a very short time for already several of the clubs have held practice and the members of the Victoria, the largest of them all, will start playing within the next few days. Their courts have been undergoing repairs and are now in splendid shape.

The general meeting of the club will be held next Friday night, at which plans for the season will be discussed and officers elected. The dates for the annual tournament have already been decided on and are from July 31 to August 5, inclusive. As usual entries from Seattle, Vancouver, Spokane, Tacoma, Portland and Duncan will compete.

OTTAWAS COMPLY.

Ottawa, April 1.—At the annual meeting of the Ottawa Rowing Club the question of sending a champion eight to the Henley regatta was the chief topic.

President Cameron announced that the C. A. A. O. had endorsed Ottawa's entry and that formal affidavits of the regular 'o' and the spares, Haycock and O'Donoghue, had been mailed to England on Saturday.
Arrangements have been made to sail June 10 providing that Henley Stewards accept the entry. The Ottawa club, as was suggested by the Stewards, has returned the $5,000 subscribed last year and are accepting donations only from honorary or active members of the club.

ISLANDERS START OFF WITH VICTORY

Local Ball Team Has Close Call—Poor Batting—
Thomas the Star

In a game which would have sent the fans home chuckling to themselves were it not for the fact that they all knew the Islanders should be doing better than they were, the local Northwestern league ball team scored its first victory of the season by a score of two runs to one.

There was nothing the matter with the Islanders' fielding, although an error on the part of Raymer resulted in one of the Knights of Columbus making the circuit, but their batting was miserable. Everyone agreed the ball but couldn't find the opening in the visitors' infield. However, everyone who saw the game will admit that the Knights were "bears" for covering ground and gobbling like so many hot cakes.

The Islanders took the field first with Lane in the box and the first man to bat, McNamara, made things look serious by banging out a two-bagger. On a sacrifice he went to third and tried to reach home when Ford drove a hot grounder between second and third. He reckoned without his lanky host, however, for Ward nailed him within ten feet of the plate.

Seattle did have a chance to make an earned run in this inning but having missed it they lost their only opportunity, for Lane was loosened up and he had the high sign on every one of them. The husky twirler pitched one of the best games ever seen in Victoria; his control was perfect and his curves had forked lightning beaten to a standstill.

Strange to say, the first man at the bat for the Islanders, Ten Million, also landed on the sphere for two sacks. When Ward got to first and from there to second on an error it looked good for a run, especially as Goodman, who has been handling a big stick ever since he arrived, was batting. But the home run hitter fell down and both Ward and Million died on bases.

In the second inning the visitors went out in one, two, three order, but Clementson, the first man at the plate for the Islanders, reached second on a beautiful hit. He should really have died there, for none of the succeeding batters hit safely, but owing to a combination of error he came in with the first run for Victoria. In the next inning nothing worthy of mention happened; each batter plowed the air ineffectually three times and retired.

The tables were turned in the fourth. Raymer fumbled and allowed Ford to take first. The next batter drove a safe single out to Clementson in right field and the man on first took third. Then Clementson did a foolish thing. Lane had run in to back Dashwood up and Clem, without looking, threw the ball to where the pitcher would have been had he been in his box. On this Ford came in. Lane now took things into his own hands and retired the side.

When the Islanders came up they all found the ball was usually the case throughout the game, but the fielding of the Knights was beautiful and in particular that of the third baseman Ford, who covered his territory like a big leaguer.
In the fifth Thomas was put into the box and pitching, the like of which has never been seen in Victoria since the days when Jimmy Holmes had that famous drop of his working most effectively and with which he used to make the batters look so foolish. That is just what happened when Thomas, the unknown, climbed on to the slab. Ten men came to bat in three innings and nine of them walked back to the bench with a dazed expression on their faces. The other couldn't get his bat swinging in time and so the umpire gave him his base.

To quote one of the fans, it was the funniest thing imaginable to see those disheartened knights wander to and fro between the plate and the bench. The first few men did not know what had happened. They saw a streak shoot across the pan and then, thinking they ought to make some kind of a showing, wobbled the bat feebly. After a while, however, they tried a scheme. The batter would watch Thomas carefully, and as soon as the twirler raised his arm he would swing like a hammock to find even then that he was two seconds late.

As far as the Knights are concerned there is nothing to say about those last five innings as not a man reached first, but there is a lot to say about the Islanders. If the Knights did not hit, they at least have the excuse of not being able to see what to strike at, but the Victorians were battling against a man whose favorite ball was a slow twisting outer, and although that is not an easy ball to land on, they should have got more than they did. It certainly was not their fault.

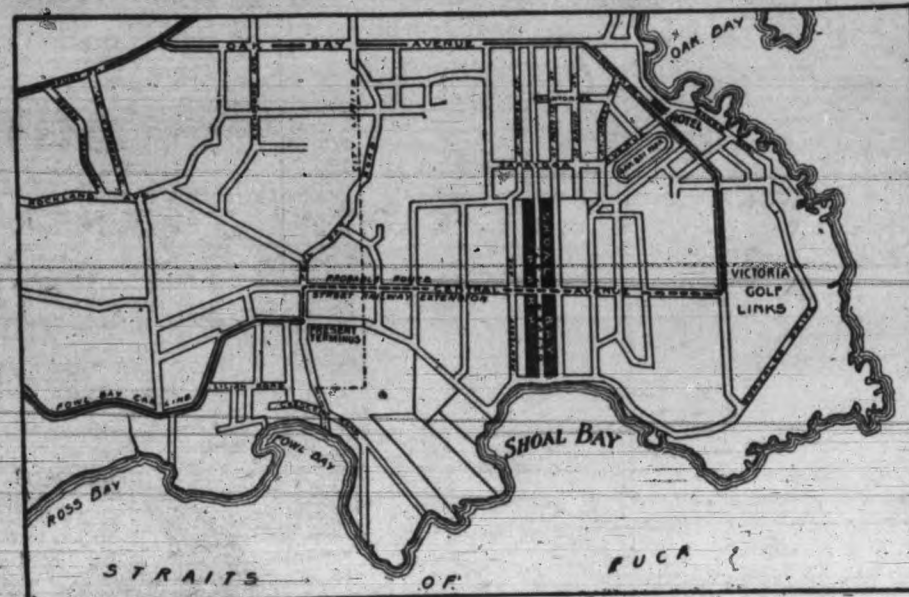

The run came in the sixth. Thomas singled, Ten Million sacrificed and Davis passed Thomas along to third. There were two men out and a man on third. A safe hit would bring in an earned run, but there was no such luck for Ward, coming up in an easy fly to the center.

centre fielder. It did not go deep and the short stop thought he could get it. Two many cooks spoil the broth.

To the indescribable rage of the pitcher they watched the ball fall between them without making an effort to catch it. Thomas, in the meantime, had burnt up the ground between third and home and Victoria was one in the lead. In their last time to bat two of the Knights fanned and the other went out at first.

Eddie Gleason umpired to the complete dissatisfaction of one thirty-third degree fan, who laughed him to scorn whenever he called a ball on one of the local twirlers or a strike on one of the home team batters. The detailed score was:

MINERS' PRESIDENT RESIGNS.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 1.—Roasting his enemies roundly, T. L. Lewis on Thursday retired from the presidency of the United Mine Workers of America, for which office he was recently defeated by John P. White, of Iowa. Lewis' vocabulary was bitter. He stated that it was unfortunate that the miners' organization was gradually drifting into the control of men with no sense of justice, with no regard to wage contracts, and with no scruples as to how to retain power. As a last word Lewis reiterated his opposition to strikes.

BASEBALL CHAMPIONS in the MAKING

How the Shrewd Manager, Like McGraw, Chance or Mack, Sizes Up His Material and Fits Together the Cogs of His Machine So That It Runs Smoothly.

(Copyright, 1911, by the New York Herald Co. All rights reserved.)
LIKE a child who builds a house out of blocks, slowly and carefully, fitting each piece exactly into another, is the big league manager, constructing a pennant winning baseball club. And still like the child with his blocks, if the key-stone topples and falls, down comes the whole structure.

An exact style of architecture is necessary to any ball club that is to win in the big leagues, and then for the rest every manager has his own ideas about the trimmings and filigree. A club must have balance first of all. It cannot sag here and bag there like a suit of clothes that has been badly pressed. Oftentimes a star in one position is sacrificed in a trade to acquire another man of mediocre calibre, but whose talents make him more valuable to fill a pathetic gap in the team, where the star, who has been passed on, would have been of no value at all. That is why the fan, who looks for individual merit rather than co-operative efficiency, cannot comprehend many trades and often criticises a manager unjustly.

Next, a team must have harmony, and veterans of the game say that this is the hardest quality of all to engender in a ball club. There are so many petty jealousies and imagined slights among ball players that a manager has to keep one hand in the box of salve all the time and the other grasping the gad, passing out a carefully prepared blend of the two in order to maintain peace in his club and get all the men working together. The spirit of self-sacrifice is not found to be rampant among ball players at their work.

A manager will build and build for several seasons, carefully selecting his timbers and painstakingly picking the men to play his parts, and then, when he thinks that he has put together the machine that he desires, he finds that somewhere a square peg is in a round hole. Sometimes the peg cannot be whittled down to fit the whole and he has to find another peg. May be at last, when he has constructed a winner and has won a pennant and possibly a world's championship, some cog refuses to mesh with the others and the whole team crumbles. Then he has to start to build again. It is a continual process of renewal, this keeping up a big league ball club. And it isn't the initial cost of a player, but the upkeep, that counts. A wise manager is continually tapping and testing his machine for flaws and weak places where games are likely to leak through.

Sometimes a part goes without any warning. It does not wear out gradually, but, in baseball parlance, "cracks," and this one cog may be so important, so vital to the team that the pennant chances of the club "crack" with the man. Of course a manager is always risking injuries to his stars in every game they play, but that is part of the gamble. These are a few of the vicissitudes of the successful manager in the big leagues. It is a wise man who knows his own club, its strong and weak points.

When Chance put together the Chicago Cubs he created one of the greatest baseball machines that ever won a pennant. Five years the club held up before it "cracked," and there are those who do not believe that it is gone yet. The reason for the permanency of this ball club can be found in the perfect balance that Chance attained in constructing it. He did not have just one pitcher on whom he had to depend to win a pennant, but he had Brown, Overall, Reulbach, Pfeister and, last year, Cole. His pitching staff was ideal. It did not have one pinnacle surrounded entirely by uncertain performers. It was the same with all the positions. The balance of the team was as nice as that in the works of an expensive watch.

As in other walks of life, in baseball a successful man has to be a shrewd trader. That is where Chance has excelled. He has rejuvenated the club again and again by his clever trades, which were laughed at when they were made. Harry Steinfield has played some great baseball for the Cubs, yet he was a cast-off when Chance took him from Cincinnati. Steinfield filled a bad gap in the Cubs' infield, and has been as responsible for the remarkable success of the club as any man on the team.

With Cole still untied and an uncertain quantity at the beginning of last season, Chance realized that if he was to win another pennant he must bolster up the places in his pitching staff where daylight showed through. He made a trade with Brooklyn, sending three young players to Dahlen for McIntire. This exchange probably resulted in Chicago winning another National League pennant, for McIntire, while he did not turn out to be the star expected with the Cubs behind him, nevertheless won enough games against easy teams to help the club a long way toward the flag. His coming at the time that he did was particularly happy, as neither Pfeister, Overall nor Reulbach showed any form last year, and Brown, Cole and McIntire were the spinal column of the pitching staff.

To digress for a moment:—The Brooklyn end of that trade looked very uncharitable at the time it was made and Dahlen was put on the grill for buying a gold brick with very thin plating in the three untied leaguers from the shrunken, but his judgment proved to be good, as the men received from Chicago turned out to be good ball players and helped Brooklyn with several ball games. Dahlen had a particularly strong pitching staff at the time, but he needed young blood in his club more than anything else. He had to have men whom he could fashion according to his ideas; twigs which he could bend as he wished them to grow, instead of gnarled old branches. Dahlen realised that he had to build, and he began to build with young men.

Zimmerman on the Bench.

Chance has used judgment in keeping substitutes on the bench, available in case of injuries to the regular players, who are almost as good as the Chicago veterans. In Zimmerman, the utility man, he has a ball player who would be playing regularly on any other club in either league. Yet Chance refused to break up his smooth running infield to put this athlete in some one's place, even though Zimmerman would be almost sure to hit over three hundred. But Zimmerman has been invaluable to the Cubs.

When "Johnny" Evers was tardy in reporting two seasons ago Zimmerman went into the game at second base and kept the Cubs right up in the race with the Little Trojans, to whom many persons credit the brains of the team. Again, when Evers was injured toward the end of the last season Zimmerman filled in capably, and, while he was no star in the world's series, he was not responsible for the loss of any games.

For years "Artie" Hoffman was kept associating with the bench, only filling in when a regular was laid up or going to the bat as an emergency hitter. But when "Jimmy" Siegle laid down his baseball toga Hoffman was there to fill the gap and, if anything, to bulge a little around the edges of the space occupied by Siegle. He has turned out to be a great outfielder and a great hitter. Thus preparing for the passing of his men is another angle of the Chance genius. He has a wonderful facility for showing the umpire good reason why he should get down to first base one way or another. He is a bad man with a pitcher and makes the twirler working against him pitch to the last notch. John Evers can identify a strike from a ball about as accurately as any man in the big leagues, and it is seldom, as pitchers will tell you, that he makes the mistake of waving his bat at a bad one. Thus he gets the advantage for his team almost immediately, for if a pitcher is at all nervous, starting out in the face of a big crowd, Evers' mannerisms are calculated to shake the Sphinx.

This psychological effect of Evers on a pitcher has all been figured out, and that is the reason that Chance puts him up to bat first. He is the ideal man to lead off. He is as sure of "getting on" as any player can be in baseball. Once on the bases Evers worries the whole opposing team in the field. He supplements his actions with conversation, and he is always keeping the basemen on their toes, as he is as slippery as the strait and narrow path.

Sheppard follows Evers at the bat because he can either hit the ball out or lay it down as the occasion seems to demand. Evers and Sheppard, working together, the latter at the bat and the former on the paths, are a wonderful pair of run-getters. Then Chance sends up his heavy artillery, followed by the catcher and the pitcher. Now to disturb this batting order would be to drop a grain of sand into the main-spring of a valuable watch.

Each man has his own set of signals with the preceding batter and the following, and very often these signals are changed when, by the "underground routes" of baseball, it is noised around the circuit that signal tipping is going on in certain towns. If a base runner misses a signal from a batter or if the hitter misses the signal a whole play may be spoiled. So the two men who bat together must understand each other perfectly and get accustomed to exchanging tips on plays. Thus to rearrange a batting order would be to upset a smooth running machine.

Chance has made the Cubs a great team on "inside" ball in the field, too. So highly developed has this department become that every man on the team knows whether the pitcher is going to throw a curve or a straight ball before he pitches. The signal is passed along to the rest of the team by Evers, who gets it at second base from the catcher. This thing made the Cubs

Suppose that the batter is right handed and the catcher signals for a curve on the outside corner of the plate. Evers stoops down and rubs his glove in the dirt. With the pitcher every man on the Cubs team is on the move toward right field, because baseball scientists have figured it out that a right handed batter will hit a ball on the outside of the plate to right field. Thus this general shifting of the whole Cub team toward right field cuts down the nude area and reduces the possibility of the batter getting a hit.

Where the Cubs Failed.

Now to continue the hypothetical case, imagine the effect if the pitcher throws the ball over the inside corner and the batter hits to left field. He catches every one off balance, going the wrong way to field the ball, and very likely will get extra bases on the hit. That is the reason the Cubs were so successful when their pitching staff was going right, and had the control to throw the ball where the men had been warned it would go. This system, with a pitcher in the box sure of his control, cut down the uncovered territory to almost a minimum.

But last summer this overdeveloped "inside" play in the field back-fired on the Cubs because their pitchers went bad. Brown was none too sure of his control all season, and the rest of them were as feeble as "in side" information on a home race. Time and again last season the entire Cub team was playing for the left field when the pitcher unintentionally double-crossed his own supporters, threw the ball over the outside, and the batter hit to right field.

Many of the Cubs blame the lack of control of the pitchers for the loss of the world's series. Even though this running with the pitch, according to the signal received from Evers, was abolished altogether by Chance toward the end of the National League season, he ordered his men to continue to try it in the world's series. It is a pet play of his, for he invented it. But the Chicago pitchers lacked control woefully, and time and again hits by the Athletics to one field caught the whole team off its balance and running toward the opposite field. This thing made the Cubs look as awkward in the field as a chauffeur driving an automobile on the left hand side.

The Cubs were caught off their balance so many times in the first game, with Overall pitching, that Chance told them in the third inning to stay rooted to their positions until they saw where the ball was going. But he reverted to the old system again the next day because he thought that Brown would have control, and again it was untrue to him and worked against his inventor.

Chance is the only big league manager who ever has used this system of the men running with the pitch and anticipating the direction in which the ball will be hit from knowing the specimen that is to be served to the batter. No other manager ever felt enough confidence in his pitchers to try it, but when Chance's staff was in its prime the idea worked out very well, and, as he was the parent of it, was very proud of his child. At first, when teaching the fielders to start with the pitch, he had considerable trouble impressing on some of the athletes, in connection with whose cerebral case the name ivory is sometimes mentioned, that they must not start before the pitcher let go of the ball, as that gave away the signals to the batter.

Instantly a fielder would begin to lean in the direction that he was going with the pitch as the twirler wound up, and the batter would guess what was coming and shift his feet to hit to another field. But, at last, Chance had his team working perfectly and covering acres of ground by this system of his. For three years it was a brilliant success, and then his pitchers went back on him.

McGraw, who by the way, a great man on inside baseball, would never try it because he has always declared that it makes too much difference if the team is caught going the wrong way.

"I've got too uncertain a crowd of fingers," he said once. "What do you suppose would happen if I had the men attempt to cover the fields according to the signals given by my catchers, with 'Rube' Marquard in the box?"

The writer was in a hurry and did not try to tell him.

But in spite of all the baseball foresight of Chance his machine is beginning to crumble in so many places now that he cannot plug up the holes and will have to start to build all over again. The Philadelphia Athletics are the successors to the Cubs, and they form altogether a different type of ball club. Since "Connie" Mack won the championship of the American League in 1905, and then lost the world's championship to the Giants, he has built up an almost completely new team. It is of the rough and ready type, constructed out of young timber, that depends on its robust strength rather than science to win games. The Athletics do not start with the pitch. They trust in the speed in their young legs to cover ground after they know where the ball has been hit. And yet they beat the Cubs at their own game, the "inside" game, in the series which gave them the world's championship.

The first shock that the veteran Cubs received was in the first game of the series, when "Eddie" Collins, the youthful second baseman of the Athletics, came to the bat. The Cubs had begun to play with a sort of ease on their faces, acting as if they were making a concession to even meet a team of such young men for the championship of the world. Their manner on the field implied that, after all, they were only doing the Philadelphia club a favor to consider the team so much as to play it.

Kling and Collins.

Collins, a youngster with all sorts of nerve, came to the bat, standing for the first time in front of John Kling, a bad man with his tongue, who, with his monologue upset the skill of the debonair "Ty" Cobb in two world's series. Collins had stolen more bases in the American League than any other player. Kling took this fact as his theme. As "Eddie" rubbed some dirt on his hands and fixed his cap more firmly Kling said:—

"So you led the American League in stolen bases this season, did you? Well, you are not up against an American League catcher now. If you get on, let's see you steal."

Collins got on. Then he proceeded to outguess both Kling and Overall. He took a big lead off of John Kling, and by some clever acting induced Kling to think that he was going down on the first ball. The Chicago catcher signalled for Overall to waste one. Twice more Collins repeated this trick and two more balls did Kling signal his pitcher to waste, for he was bound to show the best base runner in the American League his place. Then Overall had to pitch and Collins stole the base cleanly, coming up from under Tinker, smiling at Kling.

That was one instance of the Athletics outplaying the Cubs at the "inside" game, their favorite child. But it was not the only one. Time and again during the series the Cubs, who thought their baseball intellect invulnerable, were beaten mentally by the younger men. Evers' head was sadly missed from the Cubs' council table.

While the Athletics do not make the "inside" game an obsession, they play it rather extensively. Just a brief allusion to an incident that took place in a game between the Philadelphia and Detroit American League teams one day last season shows how quickly a man has to think in baseball and how highly developed the real "inside" game is on all teams.

Baker, on third base, Davis was coaching and "Rube" Oldring was at the bat. He rubbed his bat in the hollow of his hand as he stepped up to the plate, which, between Baker and Oldring meant the end of the run play. "Schmidt," catching for Detroit, got the signal and signalled to Mullen, the twirler, for a pitch out. Davis caught the pitchout signal and gave to both the base runner and batter what is known as the "way" sign, which means that all plays are off. So in a few seconds a play had been planned, the opponents had spied it and prepared to upset it, and the original plotters had found out that the enemy knew their plans and the play had been called off. After the first game in the world's series the Athletics were getting all the Cubs' signals.

So it will be seen that there is a great contrast between the methods of these two world's champions and the manner in which the machines were put together. Chance took a team of veterans almost when they passed into his hands and drilled them into a machine which was efficient through its "inside" play. Mack constructed his club out of youngsters and depended on their natural strength and youthful vitality to win games.

The Giants last season were a great example of an almost baseball team. The team of the line were good, but the pitching staff lacked balance. It was a one man staff, and a pitching department with only one soloist never won a pennant for any club. Mathewson was really the sole pitcher to be depended upon. Another weakness of the club was its lack of baseball intelligence. McGraw complained again and again during the season that he had to stick to the coaching lines continually and do all the thinking for several men on the club.

"I haven't any one whom I can send out there and depend on," the little manager complained one day. McGraw has almost entirely rebuilt his team since it won the world's championship in 1905. He began the reconstruction when he traded Dahlen, Bowerman and McGann to Boston. Many persons thought that he was making a mistake then. For in answer to that criticism McGraw asks where any of the three men he traded away is playing ball actively now. In that trade he got Bridwell, now one of the best short-stops in the game.

Many trades and the reasons for them are not understood at all by the ordinary observer. For instance, the recent exchange of players between Cincinnati and Philadelphia had a veiled meaning to many persons. The men involved seemed to be all young and all equally tall. It was generally believed that Cincinnati got a shade the better of the exchange. But the secret at the bottom of it all was that the men let out from Philadelphia were considered troublemakers and alleged to be spoiling the smooth running of the team machinery by the formation of cliques. It was a case of Doolin sacrificing for the good of the team, willingness which he expects from the new men.

The general baseball public often asks the question why a wealthy club does not go out and buy stars. There is no open market in baseball. The real dealers are piecewise when they are in their prime. Cobb, Mathewson, Wagner, Lajoie and many of their kind could not be bought for gold. It all means that a winning big league ball team has to be built, not bought. Each manager has to find his own pearls and then string them into his own necklace in his own way. That is the answer.

NEW YORK LEGISLATURE ELECTS SENATOR

Justice J. O'Gorman Declares
in Favor of Reciprocity
With Canada

Albany, N. Y., April 1.—Supreme Court Justice James A. O'Gorman, of New York, a Democrat, was elected United States senator by the legislature last night on the sixty-fourth joint ballot, after a deadlock lasting since January 8.

Justice O'Gorman received 112 votes out of 192 cast. Chauncey M. Depew, his Republican opponent, received 80. Total vote cast 192. Necessary for choice 97.

Outlines Position.

New York, April 1.—Justice James A. O'Gorman, senator-elect from New York, said in his speech of acceptance that he stands for immediate downward revision of the tariff, reciprocity with Canada, the parcel post, fortification of the Panama canal, direct election of United States senators and the federal income tax. He favors rigid economy in government expenditures, and is opposed to "all special privileges and monopolies, to the new nationalism and to the centralizing tendency of the Republican party."

SALE OF ORIENTAL RUGS.

Stewart Williams & Co., duly instructed by the importers, will sell by public auction, at 708 Fort street, just above Douglas street, on Tuesday, at 2.30, about 150 Oriental rugs, suitable for dining rooms, drawing rooms, bedrooms, offices and halls, including Mirzapores from 7ft. 1in. to 16ft. 6in. by 12ft. 4in.; Decans about 6ft. by 8ft.; and Oriental strips from 9ft. 3in. by 3ft. 2in. to 12ft. 6in. by 2ft. 2in. The rugs will be on view Tuesday morning.

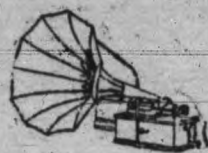

WILL NOT INCREASE WAGES.

Portland, Ore., April 1.—Employing job printers have notified the local typographical union that they will not accede to a demand for an increase of 75 cents per day in the existing scale for linotype operators. The printers assign as their reason that they are compelled to meet competition from other cities where the scale is from 20 to 33 1-3 per cent. below the existing Portland scale, and further increase would demoralize their business. The present minimum is $4.75 for day work and $5.25 for night work.

STRATHCONA'S GIFT.

New York, April 1.—Announcement was made here last night that Lord Strathcona, lord high commissioner for Canada in Britain, has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Western commission of the federation of the Y. M. C. A., and with the acceptance makes a gift of $150,000 to funds for Y. M. C. A. buildings in Manitoba and Alberta. Within eighteen months, Lord Strathcona also has given $25,000 each to Association buildings at Winnipeg, Vancouver, Toronto and Montreal.

NO VALID OBJECTION TO RECIPROCITY

Grand Trunk Official Says
Many Fruitgrowers Are Coming to B. C.

A six weeks' tour through western Canada and down the Pacific slope as far as Southern California without finding a single man with any valid objection to reciprocity other than sentiment is the record of W. P. Hinton, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, who returned to Winnipeg a few days ago. Mr. Hinton of course takes an absolute stand on the question, and told the reporter just what he experienced. "This talk," he said, "about the fruit growing industry in British Columbia being killed by the pact does not seem to be consistent with fact, for there is a great movement now and will be a greater movement of the fruit men of Southern California to the fruit valleys of British Columbia, particularly the Skena river district. The pact is inviting immigration to a very great extent and is interesting Americans in Canada to a greater degree than ever before.

"I was all the way down the Pacific coast interesting the Americans in Canada, and I have discovered that the coast people of the States, while particularly attracted by the fruit valleys of British Columbia, will not come to the prairie provinces. The colonization of central British Columbia is going ahead at a very rapid pace, and there are large numbers of settlers moving northward from the western states, particularly Southern California.

"While out west I was surprised at the number of British capitalists I discovered throughout the country looking over the territory as a field for investment."

Concerning the progress made in the construction of the road, Mr. Hinton spoke very favorably. Several great works are under contemplation in addition to the lengthy programme recently made public. These include roads at several divisional points and at least two hotels. The hotels will be built at Regina and Edmonton, and while no particulars are yet known about them Mr. Hinton stated that a hotel would not be of service to them that cost under half a million.

While the exact location of the yards is not just decided, they will be on the Calgary branch, on the main line west of Edmonton, and east of Prince Rupert, and at Regina. These are works that will be rendered necessary by the construction of lines planned for 1911.

PRESENT PROBLEMS OF SOUTH AFRICA

Race Question, Taxation, and Defence Will Have to Be Dealt With

A paper entitled "The Resources and Problems of the Union of South Africa" was read before the colonial section of the Royal Society of Arts, London, by Sir Richard Solomon, high commissioner for the Union of South Africa, in the course of which he dwelt principally upon the wealth of South Africa as a producing country. He said that during the last 40 years the wealth of Africa has been mainly derived from its minerals, but that now a new era was opening before it, in the promise of great agricultural prosperity.

The growing of cotton was new in South Africa and the experiments tried at Tzaneen, Rustenburg and Barberton had far exceeded the most sanguine expectations.

Among the problems which will call for solution in the immediate future are the establishment of uniformity in different laws, the parliamentary franchise question, and the settlement of the civil service, these having, so far received only a passing solution.

After discussing these problems, Sir Richard Solomon said that the South African parliament would soon be called upon also, for a custom tariff for goods imported into the Union. He said that the present rebate on British manufactured goods cost the colonial revenue over £2,500,000 a year. This question, however, involved many other considerations of deep import to the country, which, being of an imperial character, would have to be most carefully dealt with. South Africa, not being a manufacturing country itself, offers fine opportunities for British manufacturers, thus of the total imports to the Union, amounting to £170,000,000, 58 per cent. in value came from the British colonies, therefore 70 per cent. of the import trade of the Union was with the British empire.

He spoke most encouragingly on the subject of the condition of the race feeling in South Africa to-day, and said that during the last three or four years the feeling dwindle away to a most surprising extent between the white races, so that the main question now before the Union government was not the reconciling of the white man, but the proper dealing with the native races.

The principles of justice, freedom and toleration, he said, must govern this question until a sound native policy is arrived at. South Africans, he averred, recognized more every day their responsibility with regard to helping to maintain the strength of the British navy. Judging by the speeches of responsible statesmen, he said there is no lack of advocating the policy of small navies, but South Africa's contribution to the naval defences would probably take the form of an annual vote of money to the British admiralty. The Union parliament fully recognized the entire responsibility of the country for its own local defence. The present forces available, excluding British troops, which must some day be removed, were totally inadequate to provide a sufficient defence for the Union.

Next week at the Victoria theatre there will be an amateur competition on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, with matinee Saturday afternoon. Performers can enter now by handing in their names at the box office of the theatre. The seven performers this week give their final performance to-night, and the prizes will be awarded according to the votes cast by those who have attended through the week, and those going to-night. There are seven performers and the competition is close for first place. Seven picture films will be shown to-night as usual.

New Empress Theatre.
The new management is determined to make the new Empress the most popular moving picture theatre in town. The programme for to-day ought to attract large crowds. Scenes from Japanese life are shown in "Hako's Sacrifice." Hako is an unhappy apprentice to a cruel master. The only kindness he ever received was from little Morning Glory, the little daughter of Oguri, a merchant on the verge of ruin. She gives Hako a chrysanthemum which he tends with loving care. Oguri is seized after a prize of 500 yen is announced for the finest chrysanthemum. Morning Glory trains her flower in the hope of winning the prize and freeing her father. Hako's desires are centred in securing his release from his cruel master. Oguri's rival destroys Morning Glory's flower, and Hako by a supreme effort of sacrifice secretly replaces the broken flower with his own. Delightful views of the land of flowers are shown in the picture, which is quite one of the best seen here for some time.

"A Father's Love" is a pathetic story of domestic unhappiness. "Eldora, the Fruit Girl," tells of the sacrifice made by a poor fruit girl who gave up her rich lover because she felt she was not his equal. "The Bonnetier's Daughter" is a splendid film, combining love and comedy, the scene being laid in Southern Europe. There is also shown the arrival of Roosevelt in New York.

The first clue to the new $50 treasure hunt will be shown on the screen to-night. If the hidden disc is not found $10 will be given for the nearest solution.

You can deposit your money at 4 per cent. interest with The R. C. Permanent Loan Company and be able to withdraw the total amount or any portion thereof without notice. Cheques are supplied to each depositor. Paid up capital over $1,000,000, assets over $2,000,000. Branch office, 1210 Government Street, Victoria, B. C.

FIRE DRILLS IN FACTORIES.

Portland Manufacturers Will be Asked to Co-operate With the Fire Department.

Portland, Ore., April 1.—With a view of preventing holocausts such as the recent New York fire, Portland factory owners will be asked to co-operate with the fire department in establishing a systematic fire drill for employees, according to a plan announced by Fire Chief Campbell today.

"I believe the innovation will prove successful," said Campbell. "Plans for the drill are being prepared now and will be submitted soon to various factory operators for approval. We have also submitted a communication to the school board asking that uniform drills and fire signals be adopted in all the schools."

LINER EXPERIENCES EXCELLENT WEATHER

Lonsdale Arrives From Salina Cruz With Good Cargo—Has Passengers.

Encountering beautiful weather for the greater part of the passage, both north and south, the Canadian-Mexican liner Lonsdale, Capt. Bates, arrived at the outer dock last night, and this morning commenced discharging her cargo for this port. She brought north as passengers from Salina Cruz, Mrs. Aldridge and family, who have resided in Mexico for many years, and who have come to Victoria to settle.

Just after passing San Francisco on her northbound trip, the Lonsdale ran into a series of heavy gales blowing from the north. For two days the big steamship forced her way through the head winds and seas when the weather cleared off. The vessel was delayed a little by the heavy weather, although her speed was not reduced. When off Destruction Island the Lonsdale experienced thick fogs which prevailed for a day. The remainder of the passage was accomplished in splendid weather.

The steamship brought north 1,500 tons of general freight, of which 1,100 tons is for Victoria. The local cargo included three Scottish boilers for the Chemical Works, which will be installed at the company's plant immediately in order to increase the output. She also discharged 20 tons of pig iron, which, together with the boilers, were shipped from England via the Tehuantepec railway. The rest of the freight for Victoria consisted of odds and ends.

Neither the officers nor any of the crew were afforded the opportunity of witnessing any of the engagements on the Mexican frontier. Most of them were anxious to see some of the fighting, but as all the battles are being fought inland the men of the Lonsdale had to be contented with viewing the troops as they assembled at the coast cities, prepared for the march to the front. The opinions which the Lonsdale's officers hold of the Mexican soldiers are not very high.

SOLD FOR TROOPSHIP.

Old White Star Liner Germanic Purchased by Turkish Government.

Liverpool, April 1.—Departing March 16 from the Mersey for the last time, to take up her position as a troopship of the Turkish government at Constantinople, the old steamer Germanic of the White Star line, left the Mersey for ever, having been sold to the Ottoman government. She has for some time been undergoing extensive alterations and overhauls, and is able to maintain a speed of 18 knots. On a trial trip a few weeks ago this speed was attained, being four knots above the contract speed. She has a number of Turkish naval men on board and will be delivered to her new owners by Capt. Borg.

It is interesting to recall the early days of the Germanic. She was built at Belfast in 1874 with a tonnage of 5,071 tons. She is 455 feet long, and was the ocean greyhound of her time. It was on May 20, 1875, that she left the Mersey on her maiden voyage to New York, her passengers embarking by tender from the quay, and she arrived at New York on May 30, taking nine days from Queenstown. She, however, improved on this, for in 1891 she made a passage from Queenstown in 7 days 7 hours and 37 minutes at a speed of 16.10 knots. The White Star line had then the fastest liners afloat, and with her sister ship Britannic, the Germanic made some notable passages. Their saloon lists have included many world-famed personalities, and they were probably among the most successful ships ever built. The Germanic was afterwards transferred to the Dominion line under the name of Ottawa, and made some record passages to Canada.

MAKES LAST TRIP ON OLD SCHEDULE

Prince Rupert Commences Summer Programme Monday.

Completing her last trip under the winter schedule, the G. T. P. steamer Prince Rupert, Capt. Barney Johnson, arrived in port late this afternoon from Prince Rupert and way points, bringing south a number of passengers and considerable freight. On Monday morning she enters on the new timetable which has just been issued, and will continue running on it until late in the autumn, when travel to the north begins to slacken.

At 10 o'clock Monday morning she will leave the G. T. P. docks for Prince Rupert and Stewart, making her first trip through to the latter city since last fall. Under the new schedule the Rupert must make the trip between here and the G. T. P. terminals in 48 hours, which is a reduction of nearly 12 hours over the time she makes during the winter. The vessel is, however, in splendid shape for service, and well able to comply with the fast programme which has been outlined for her.

It will not be until Wednesday morning, April 19, that the Prince George, Capt. Geo. Robertson, will commence service, and when she does she will not go farther north than Prince Rupert. According to the schedule she will not be running through to Stewart until June, unless the travel to that city develops into larger proportions this spring than is expected by the officials of the company.

The Prince Rupert will leave this port to-night for Seattle, and will return to-morrow night. Many passengers have booked tickets for the trip north on Monday morning, and a great deal of freight has accumulated at both the Victoria and Vancouver docks for her.

LAUNCHING AT SEATTLE

New Cannery Tender Kenmore Slides Into Waters of Sound—Splendid Vessel.

Seattle, April 1.—In the presence of her owners and representatives of the prominent cannery concerns of the Northwest, the new cannery tender Kenmore, designed to be the fastest heavy duty vessel of her type afloat, was launched on Thursday afternoon at Georgetown. Miss Grace Geary, sister of L. E. Geary, who designed the vessel, christened her, breaking the customary bottle of champagne over the Kenmore's bow.

The new vessel was built for the Pacific American Fisheries. It is expected that on her trial trip she will develop a speed of thirteen statute miles per hour. She has the distinction of being the largest vessel of her type ever built.

The Kenmore is 85 feet long, 16 feet on the beam and has 7-foot draft. She is equipped with 100-horsepower, heavy-duty gasoline motor, and has a nine-horsepower motor for brailing the fish traps. She also carries a six-horsepower direct-connected lighting outfit, designed to operate a powerful searchlight, which is to be used to locate fish pirates who endeavor to approach the traps under cover of darkness. She is built to carry fifty-five tons of fish in her tanks.

The new tender was built in the shipyards of Johnson Brothers & Blanchard and is finished inside and out like a private yacht, in mahogany and white enamel throughout the pilot house and owner's quarters.

With a full cargo of cement, the steamer Marmion of the Vancouver Island Portland Cement Co. arrived in port yesterday morning. After discharging at Raymond's wharf, she returned to Tod Inlet.

C. P. R. TO IMPROVE BOUNDARY LINE

Large Sum Will Be Spent This Year—Steel Bridge to Replace Wooden Structures

Nelson, March 31.—The officials and staff of the local mechanical and engineering department of the C. P. R. have a year of strenuous activity before them according to information obtained from C. S. Moss, resident engineer for this division of the railway. Although no exact figures of the actual amount appropriated by the company for expenditure upon improvements to the different lines in this district have been given out it is understood that the total is by a considerable amount larger than any granted in previous years.

In accordance with the plans of the company inaugurated some three years ago a large proportion of the sum allotted to the division will be expended upon the Boundary line. On this stretch between Nelson and Midway, a distance of about 126 miles this year's plans cover the erection of two steel bridges to replace existing wooden structures, the filling of some five or six other bridges, the laying down of between 70 and 80 miles of heavy steel rails to replace the present light metal and approximately the same mileage of rebalancing. The new steel bridges will be built near Cascade and Greenwood, and the filling of one bridge has already commenced at Fisherman. The location of the remaining fills have not been announced.

The new rails will be 85-pound instead of 75-pound, and the new ballasting will be in accordance with the heavy rails.

Another large expenditure of money this year will be made upon a new car center shop which is to be built here for the mechanical department.

At Proctor a gang of men are at work making repairs to the wharf and slip. The wharf is about half a mile in length, and when the repairs have been finished will be much heavier built than at present.

PIONEERS GATHER

Ashcroft, March 30.—Probably the most noted social function which has annually been held in Ashcroft for the past twenty-two years is the Yale-Lillooet Pioneer society's annual banquet. The society a few evenings ago gathered at a dinner some thirty guests.

C. A. Semlin, president of the society, held the seat of honor, and proposed the toasts, assisted by James Murphy, Phil Clarke, vice-president occupying the other end of the long table.

Of the original pioneers who signed the charter, there are but a few left. The members who were present were A. Semlin, P. Parke, W. Fearn, Jas. Hadcock, I. Lehman, O. Harvey, W. B. Bailey, J. Burr, J. C. Smith, and M. Bailey.

ARROW LAKES NAVIGATION

Nelson, March 31.—That the Arrow Lakes will in all probability be open for navigation tomorrow was the statement made by Capt. J. C. Gore, superintendent of the lake and river service of the C.P.R. In this event the coast train will resume its regular schedule, both leaving and arriving here during the evening. At present coast passengers are being conveyed to the main line at Revelstoke via the Slocan Lake and Nakus routes. Although the water has not risen much in the Arrow Lakes, ice is going away rapidly, and the boats will be able to get through about the first of next month.

KAMLOOPS HOSPITAL

Kamloops, March 31.—A meeting of the new hospital committee was held at the hospital. Architect Bird was present, and about alterations were made to the plan. Revised plans will be quickly prepared and tenders called for the construction of the new building. In the meantime tenders are being invited for excavation work, as well as for the construction of basement walls. Work on the building itself will, it is thought, be in progress sometime in May, and the total expenditure will be, it is understood, in the neighborhood of $100,000.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet-Philosopher

DOLLARS AND DISCOURSES

A dollar will do more good to a man who is down and out than the gaudiest platitude that a generous man can spout. The world beaten sport comes by, and says he is out of luck, and hands me a soulful sigh, and asks for a silver buck. And O, how I like to preach, before I hand out the cash, to show that I am a peach at making a moral haul! Of precepts I have, a store, of maxims and helpful saws; I pass them along like a game of ball, or play with a rubber doll. I'd rather wind up my tongue, and then let the same run down, than dance with the daintiest young girl graduate in the town. And so when I meet a gent who's needing a shirt and tie, I hand him a Lincoln cent, and preach for a while. I've plattitudes by the peek, and oafs that will quiet strife; I'm loaded clear to the neck with lessons and rules of life. I've bandages, salves and splints for morals that lamely go; I'd rather give helpful hints than go to a minstrel show.

MANY BY-LAWS AT NEW WESTMINSTER

Ratepayers Will Also Vote on Proposed Civic Gas Plant

New Westminster, March 31.—The property owners will have a large number of questions to settle on Wednesday, April 12, for that is the day on which they will be given an opportunity to vote on the numerous by-laws which have been before the council since the first of the year.

In addition to the debenture by-law, a referendum will be submitted to the people, asking them whether it would be advisable for the city to procure a gas plant. The city at present own the local electric light and power plant, and it nets considerable profit to the city each year. The local gas plant is considered inadequate as it does not extend far enough. If the referendum is passed by the people the city council will proceed immediately and install a complete new gas plant. A by-law would probably be put to the people for this purpose.

Two by-laws were passed at the special meeting of the council—a school by-law for $25,000 and the high school debenture by-law for $75,000. The school by-law provides for a school site in the North Central part of the city, $12,000 and a school building on same $40,000, a school in Sapperton $40,000, and a school in Queensborough, Lulu Island, $3,000.

No provision is made in the high school by-law for a site, and it is evidently the intention of the school board to erect the high school on the property known as Tipperary. There has been considerable discussion as to whether the school should be built there and numerous protests have been made. The council therefore decided to have a referendum to decide the point.

They will ask: "Are you in favor of building a high school on the property known as Tipperary Park?"

Other by-laws which will be voted on are: Water extension, $35,000; parks improvement, $35,000; light extension, $25,000; city stables, $20,000; city store house, $15,000; public schools, $35,000; high school, $75,000. Besides these, owing to a mistake in the by-laws, the street improvement by-law, $30,000; the Lulu Island by-law, $30,000, and the fire hall and apparatus by-law, $12,000, although passed last year and part of the money spent, will have to be re-submitted. Another by-law which will have to be voted on again is the incinerator by-law for $20,000, which was passed last year and the money raised. It has been decided not to build an incinerator, but to submit two by-laws, one for $15,000 for harbor improvements and one for $5,000 for health protection. This makes a total of $662,000 in by-laws to be voted on.

PRINCE RUPERT HOSPITAL

Prince Rupert, March 31.—"We have reached this stage, gentlemen, that we have now a hospital which is a credit to our town. We are in debt for it; and yet, right at its very inception, we are up against the proposition that we need more room for it. That is the whole matter in a nutshell."

At the hospital board meeting, P. I. Palmer in these words dealt directly with the representation by the matron that there is a shortage of private wards in the new hospital. Miss McFarlane suggested that without a great deal of expense the large maternity ward might be subdivided into a series of small semi-private wards, which would in a measure meet the need, and the house committee of the board have already taken steps to arrange for this. Mr. Scott was inclined to think that the large ward should be more permanently partitioned off than the matron's plan, but the opinion of the board is that it would be a little premature to undertake this alteration at present.

BLOWN TO PIECES

Eburne, March 31.—K. Fuquda was blown to pieces while engaged in blasting operations on a lot at the corner of River road and Oak Street. Fuquda, who was about 28 years of age, was a Japanese contractor, and had undertaken to clear the lot in question. Several stumps had been blasted successfully, when an extra large charge was applied to a specially big root. In the first instance seven sticks of blasting powder were used, but the charge misfired. Three more sticks were added, bringing the charge up to a total of thirteen sticks of dynamite. The fuse was lighted, and the workmen retired to a distance of about ninety feet. After waiting two or three minutes without any result, Fuquda, the boss, cautious, went to see what was the matter. No sooner had he reached the spot, than there was a terrific explosion, pieces of earth and stump being scattered in all directions.

The force of the explosion can be gauged by the fact that the remains of the unfortunate man were picked up at a distance of seven-two feet from the spot where he had been standing.

The water scorpion, a flat, dirty-brown insect, common in British ponds, uses its tail for boring holes in leaves of water lilies, in which it lays its eggs.

These lots are located at Woodhaven, a sub-division of Dominion Government lands located on Bedford Bay, on the North Arm of Burrard Inlet, British Columbia. Their accessibility to Vancouver, their location on salt water, and the grandeur of the scenery of the North Arm make these lots attractive for summer residence purposes.

TERMS OF PAYMENT. One-quarter in cash at the time of sale, and balance in three equal annual instalments, with interest on unpaid balance at the rate of five per cent. per annum. The lots will be offered subject to a certain deposit price in each case. For this purpose intending purchasers should provide themselves with marked cheques on Chartered Banks of Canada, made to their own order and payable at par at Vancouver, or with bank notes of as large a denomination as possible. The balance of the cash instalment must in every case be paid before the close of the sale, failing which a deposit of $50 will be forfeited and the land withdrawn from sale. Cheques are not taken in payment unless marked accepted by the Bank on which they are drawn.

A pamphlet describing this property, and a map showing the sub-division, may be had on application to the Secretary, Department of the Interior, Ottawa; W. M. Ingram, Inspector of School Lands, Vancouver; or to the Agents of Dominion Lands at New Westminster, B. C., Kamloops, B. BUY THE TIMES

Green Room

Week after next Victorians will have the pleasure of seeing Miss Gertrude Elliott (Mrs. J. Forbes Robertson), and next season her equally accomplished husband is likely to visit this city. Mr. Robertson is now playing in the big cities of the middle states in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." Next season his itinerary will extend to the Pacific coast in the same play, after which he intends to revive "Hamlet" and other plays in his repertoire, returning to the cities he has already covered, or is shortly to visit, in "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

The vaudeville performers are contemplating a union and the closed shop idea. The assertion that such is the case may seem preposterous, but there appears to be something in it. As the very essence of vaudeville is novelty, the suggestion to prevent the presentation of novelties by keeping the same

Garden of Allah." The play is to be produced at an early date by George Tyler, who has secured both the American and English stage rights. The authors are at Biskra, an oasis in the desert of Sahara, where some of the scenes of the play are laid. It is hoped that Forbes Robertson will consent to appear in the original production in New York.

The Victoria Amateur Dramatic club will at once commence rehearsals of the three one-act plays which will be put on at its initial appearance early in May. The plays chosen are: "Mr. Stelmans' Corner" by Alfred Burro, a powerful dramatic episode; "The Conversion of Nat Sturge," a charming comedy by Malcolm Watson, dramatic critic of the London Daily Telegraph; and "Mere Man," a farce for a set of performers, if adopted, would result not merely in the "closed shop," it would be a case of shutting up shop. The vaudeville Managers' Protective association, replying to a demand of the White Rats for a "closed shop" in theatres presenting vaudeville acts, announced that the association will never consent to a closed shop and will reserve the right to refuse employment to any vaudeville artist who violates his contract with any manager by refusing to perform because of the employment of non-union artists.

Madame Antonio de Navarro, who was known on the stage as Mary Anderson, has written in collaboration with Robert Hichens, a five-act play, founded on the book of the latter, "The cast of ladies, and a kindly satire of some phases of modern society. The club is very fortunate in having as its producer and stage manager H. Sheridan-Bickers, who has had a lot of experience in that capacity in the old country, and is besides a playwright who has achieved some success. He founded the Hereford Operatic society, and Sheridan Amateur Dramatic club, London, and was stage manager for the Cambridge University Amateur Dramatic club. Among the numerous playlets he has written are: "The Shell of a Soul," "The Unbidden Guest," "Quicksands," and "Comedy in a Cart," which Ethel Irving will shortly produce. Before coming to Canada, he was dramatic critic to "The Tribune," "Vanity Fair," and "What's On?" a successful illustrated weekly journal, of which he was founder and editor.

The ADVANCE MAN

Max Dill. Direct from San Francisco, where he enjoyed a run of 100 nights, Max Dill, funniest of German comedians, comes to the Victoria theatre on Monday and Tuesday next. This remarkable maker of Teutonic fun, late of the team of Kolb and Dill, is universally regarded by the press of the country as the peer of any comedian on the boards in his peculiar line of stage work. His San Francisco engagement, which is but recently closed, was an extraordinary successful one. Dill will appear in "Lonesome Town" on Monday and on Tuesday in "Dream City," a truly uproarious musical comedy entertainment.

Edgar Smith, the brilliant librettist, is responsible for the book of "Dream City," while the musical score was written by Victor Herbert, the prolific composer. This musical comedy stands unique among the many entertainments of its kind in the possession of a definite and well-defined plot. The situations are unique and hilariously funny, the lines witty and the lyrics pointed. Herbert's music is of the type that lingers in the memory, for his melodies are of the whistlable variety. There are all manner of song hits in "Dream City."

The story concerns the ambitions of one August Dinglebender (Max Dill), a Long Island truck-farmer, who is far from possessed of a fondness for labor in any form, but who has a predilection for huckleberry wine and similar stimulants. A hustling real estate promoter, who proposes to create a wonderful community called Dream City, interests Dinglebender in his scheme. And then Dinglebender dreams. His vision of the mythical city is disclosed to the audience by a series of remarkable and spectacular stage effects. The close of the play finds the Teutonic droll back in his farmyard, surrounded by his pigs and chickens.

The part of Dinglebender is one that fits Dill perfectly, and it is easily one of his greatest characterizations. He will be supported by the same cast as in his San Francisco presentation, and the original Dill beauty chorus is with him. The production demands fifty people on the stage.

New Grand Theatre. Fresh from an eight weeks' engagement at the Palace theatre, London, the Hoefler trio of famous bicyclists, with Will Hoefler as the star of the team, comes here Monday as headliners for the Grand theatre bill, to present a feature act in trick and expert cycling. Will Hoefler has for years been a big name in vaudeville. First the trio conquered all audiences in the United States, and after many appearances individually again got together for an assault on Continental audiences. Success there was instantaneous for their new and startling act, and they have returned to America with an act full of sensation and brilliancy.

Grace De Mar, a gorgeously-costumed musical comedy girl who has lately come into vaudeville, is the principal support of the headline on the bill next week, bringing a magnetic act with many changes and much singing that will be found a delight. One of the most beautiful women on the stage, she has for her act a good singing voice and an abundant wardrobe.

Pleasing parodies all for fun by Bobby Zeno and Eva-Mendell-comprise act three, that has been a big hit in the Sound city theatres. They are a duo of sterling performers of type experience, always travelling with the latest in musical amusement.

It is a long time since a trained dog act came this way and The Ballerini troupe of dogs is announced for Monday. Ballerini has taken dogs in the crude and made actors of them. They do all but speak.

A fast dancing and singing act as a curtain-raiser or opening act, by Moran and Moran, whose team work is entertaining and clever. There is always something new by duos of singers and dancers, and these will be up-to-date with what New York considers the latest for vaudeville. The Grandioso and Louis Turner orchestra bill as usual for next week, will show new pictures and play new music.

Gertrude Elliott. The attraction at the Victoria for April 15 will be the brilliant actress, Gertrude Elliott, and her splendid company, in Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's play of cheerfulness, "The Dawn of a Tomorrow." The well-known theatrical firm of Liebler & Co. are presenting this clever star and the magnificent production. The most realistic and artistic stage setting ever shown in this city is the wonderful London fog scene. Victoria has never had such a stage effect.

Mischa Elman. The young Russian violinist, has been enjoying some unusual success in New York City, where he played five times within four days three concerts with the Boston Symphony Orchestra, a private musicale at the home of Mrs. W. K. Vandervilt, Jr., and a popular concert at the Metropolitan Opera House, where over four thousand people heard him and many hundreds were turned away. In the Boston Symphony concert Elman was heard in the Lalo "Symphonie Espagnole," and at the Saturday matinee he played the Mendelssohn Concerto, with which he scored another triumph. The critic of the "New York Press" said: "It is a work that showed to full advantage Elman's brilliant style and almost incomparable feeling. The same enthusiasm which greeted Elman's first appearance in this city was again in evidence. There were almost a dozen lovers to hear such a master of his instrument as is Elman, and it is safe to say his name will go down to posterity as that of one of the most finished musicians of his time."

Unusual interest is centered in the Elman recital which he will give in this city at the Victoria theatre on the 20th inst., and the advance requests for reservations from prominent people, not only in the city but from out of town, indicate that it will be a musical event of great importance and a most brilliant society event as well.

Sheffield Choir. The forthcoming visit of the Sheffield choir, admitted to be one of the greatest choruses ever got together, is important as showing the increasing reciprocity not only in commerce but in art, between Great Britain and Canada. It must be remembered that the choir is made up of some of the best amateur vocalists in Great Britain, the male portion comprises men prominent in business affairs, educationalists, variety men, men of letters, scientific experts, etc. These men are trained observers, keen for the promotion of business, wherever opportunities offer, and enthusiastic advocates of "a solid Empire."

Since their return to England they have given over one hundred lectures on their experiences in this country, and it need hardly be said that lectures of this kind are far and away the best and most weighty advertising that the Dominion could possibly get. The fact that a greater choir is returning so soon, this time to undertake a much more extended tour of the Dominion, shows how favorably the members were impressed on the occasion of their last

YES, two cents will do it. Will place you in possession of the Catesby Tailoring Catalogue—a book full of splendid suggestions for men who like to look well-dressed and feel it.

When you think of the enormous number of suits we tailor in a year—of the fine staff of expert tailors—of our exceptional facilities for procuring specially good fabrics—then you understand why the Catesby tailoring has such a grand reputation.

It's the real London style—built for Canadian service—good inside and out. We fully recognize that very often it's the part you don't see that makes the part you do see worth seeing. So every Catesby suit is thoroughly tailored first, last and all the time—not a detail skimmed or scamped.

And the fit? Perfect, comfortable, dressy, distinctive, with individuality stamped in every graceful line.

It's not our point to make cheap suits. Good suits are our objective—suits for men who want something better than the ordinary. The price would be higher if our trade were smaller, or, if we got only one order out of a man. But we know your first suit from us will be the forerunner of many more—for you and your friends.

That's our object, anyway, and if thorough tailoring can win out, success is assured. A request will bring you a bunch of nice patterns—bigger and better than you've ever had before. The Catalogue shows the styles. The measurement form is easy to fill in and ensures faultless fit. All charges to your door are paid by us and when you get the suit it MUST fully satisfy you. If it doesn't better way, we'd do it—but there isn't. It's the only way. Every Suit is made to measure.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

New York, April 1.—Passengers arriving by a New York Central train had a horrifying introduction to a crime when the sudden application of the emergency brakes brought the train almost to a standstill opposite to a double tragedy which was being enacted in Park avenue. A well dressed man was seen to draw a revolver from his pocket, shoot a woman and turn the weapon on himself.

The engineer, the first to see the couple, threw on his brakes and shouted to the man: "Hold on, don't shoot her."

The assassin paid no heed to the unexpected witness to his deed, but took deliberate aim at the woman and fired. Then he placed the weapon at his own temple, fired and sank to the street by the woman's side.

The man was dead when the police arrived. The woman has little chance of recovery. A card in the man's pocket bore the name of Jacob Shonts. The woman was identified as Mary Czapkiewicz, of this city.

The man was further identified as the son of Rudolph Stumpitzky, a millionaire lumberman, of Austria, who died several years ago, leaving the son, Jacob, $100,000. According to a fellow member of the gentlemen's union, who said he had known him from childhood, Jacob came to America, changed his name to Shonts, and soon dissipated his fortune.

WATROUS Is Alive and Coming

Watrous is first of all an excellent new city with an unusual number of points in favor of its rapid growth. Watrous is the Central Prairie Divisional Point on the Transcontinental Line of the Grand Trunk Pacific—situated in a splendid farming country, and a natural distributing centre. Watrous also has Little Manitou Lake—a body of water twelve miles long, sufficiently charged with mineral and curative properties so that it serves as a panacea for various ailments of mankind. Watrous has already made marked progress—having grown to 1,500 inhabitants in the first two years of its existence. But the greatest outlook for Watrous is in its future—especially during the next two or three years. Indications are that this whole country along the Grand Trunk Pacific will be settled at a marvellously rapid rate. Shiplands and trainloads of newcomers are constantly announced, and it is certain that no district possesses greater attraction for these than the fine virgin country along the Grand Trunk Pacific—a goodly part of which is served by Watrous. Watrous is confident of its own future, and is adding public improvements of a lasting character, and on a considerable scale.

The Central Divisional Point On the Transcontinental Line of the GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC

City Water and Electric Light

Plans have just been approved by the Watrous Council for bringing in a plentiful supply of drinking water. This water has been tested thoroughly as to purity and fitness and has sufficient quantity and flow, so that there will be enough for manufacturing purposes as well. Splendid water is also to be had at about forty feet. An Electric Light plant will also be installed in connection with the water supply.

Sewage

The worst mistake committed by a new City is to let the matter of Sewage be delayed until an epidemic of sickness forces action in the matter.

It is typical of the up-to-date spirit which has actuated the building of Watrous up to the present time, that this matter of sewage has had early consideration, and it is expected that an early meeting of the Council will vote Bonds for the installing of a modern sewage system.

Watrous Is Taking Its Place in the Forefront of New Cities

In the meantime the Grand Trunk's Property at Watrous is priced exceptionally low—Watrous property is exceptionally good buying. The lots which we are selling at Watrous are the property of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, and are sold at their prices. All payments may be made direct to the Land Commissioner of the road, and title under the Torrens System will be issued by the Land Department of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Terms are exceedingly easy—a fifty foot lot can be bought with as little as $7.00 a month.

We are also putting out a Combination Offer, covering lots in five of the best Grand Trunk Towns, with payments extending over twenty months. Full particulars if interested.

PARIS FASHIONS

ADVANCE Styles in Millinery

BY MRS. A. T. ASHMORE.

SPRING millinery! Could anything be more fascinating than the display in the milliners' shops at this very moment? The bright ribbons and feathers, the more than natural-looking plumes, the original shapes—some, it must be confessed, rather eccentric, others attractively picturesque, and a choice few practical, becoming and smart—present an almost irresistible temptation to the woman who likes to be well costumed.

The same anxious question asked whenever any new hats are exhibited, Will large or small hats be the more popular? is answered in the usual way, "Both will be fashionable." One woman whose taste in dress is unquestioned has just returned from Paris with her customary number of hats for spring and summer—incidentally these have to be supplemented at intervals later in the season—and every hat she has brought over is flat and large. Another woman, equally fashionable and also distinguished for her taste in dress, has brought over only small high shapes. So what are the rank and file of woman-kind to do? If they are sensible they will buy most carefully this season, choosing only such shapes and colors as are becoming, and there is such diversity in style that this can readily be accomplished.

Arrangement of the Hair.

A lot depends upon how the hair is arranged as to whether or not the hat is becoming. The fashion is un- usually accepted, for the moment, in which the hair is arranged without the pompadour, or with only a small one. There is a craze—no other word expresses it—for the hair to be worn drawn down over the ears. Not one woman in a hundred looks well in this

ing out of the back of the small turban, is quite distinctive. Both these hats are in turban shape with velvet faced brim.

A charmingly picturesque and almost invariably becoming shape is on the Charlotte Corday, or mob cap, order, which never goes entirely out of fashion, but every season appears in some form or other. Until late in the spring it is made with velvet crown and pleated lace brim, for midsummer in tulle and lace or all lace, and is most of all attractive when the black lace brim has an inner ruffle of shape is unusually large, but then the entire hat is on a large scale. One of the most practical of hats is that made with bows of ribbon or of straw. All straw is now so beautifully woven and so pliable that it can be treated as though it were a material like silk, satin or velvet, and close fitting turbans and toques made of the wide braids that are apparently wrapped around the head and tied at the side or in front in wide bows are most attractive. These hats are in all colors. There is a most becoming shade of red that is extremely attractive softened by an additional bow of black velvet ribbon twisted in with straw, but the same model is effective in blue or black also.

Dark straw hats with bows of fancy ribbon and with brims faced with velvet are fashionable this spring, and there are many variations in the same style. It is only a passing fashion, however, and not so practical as might be thought, for light ribbons deface quickly, but for the woman who can buy what she likes when she likes the purchase is a good one. The forced to be economical purchaser will select the same model, but will have it carried out on more practical lines—in darker colors, for instance—or will have the ribbon bows adjusted in such a manner that they can be replaced by fresh ones when necessary.

Black and white is an extremely fashionable combination this spring and is seen to great advantage in millinery. Some of the most charming hats are white with black trimmings and vice versa. The brim, edged with black velvet or faced with it, and the black velvet bows may not be strikingly novel or original,

but are most becoming and smart, while an all black hat that might seem too vorite for those who have a fancy for the picturesque styles.

Unless for a stay at some Southern resort, the large hats of straw and lace seem a trifle "previous," but they certainly are fascinating and hard to resist, and, after all, why not buy them now and have the question settled? The smartest are on the old order, large in size, wide of brim and with low crown; the lace on the brim falls over in soft and becoming fashion, while the top of the hat is covered with the most beautiful flowers of every hue. The brim is faced with black velvet, if becoming, or with some color that is becoming. The flowers can be of any description, but it is quite a fad to have two or three different kinds together, and the smaller sized flowers are chosen in preference.

There are not so many flower hats as usual exhibited this spring, and those that are have a veiling of tulle or lace. Pink or white roses veiled in black or white tulle are to be seen on some new shapes in turbans and turbans with an edge of black velvet shirring on the small turned up brim. These hats do not seem so much as the new shapes, but a little later will undoubtedly be improved upon and made more becoming.

Practical Advice on Spring Millinery

THE woman with a small income really suffers at this time of year, if with the small income she has a keen love for dress, for the shops are never so tempting as in the spring, when every detail of dress seems more attractive than at any other time of year, partly on account of the colorings and materials that seem so suited to the bright sunshine and warm weather.

A spring hat is a necessity. With all the determination possible to economize most strictly, the winter hat not only looks badly but is uncomfortable, so that a change must be made when once a higher record of the thermometer is registered and the wearing of winter clothes becomes impossible. The first hats that are exhibited by those establishments that cater to the Southern resort trade are always high priced—quite too high priced for the majority of women. Then at the department stores are exhibited the expensive models also, but with the addition of a large stock of inexpensive ones and quantities of untried shapes. Here is a dangerous quicksand. The comparatively low cost of the "shape" and also the low price of many of the trimmings appeal irresistibly to the woman who has a taste for millinery and has been credited by admiring friends with great skill in making her own hats. She invests in at least two or three of these bargains with their accompanying trimmings and does not realize at the moment that the sum total she has paid exceeds what the cost of an already made and smarter hat will amount to.

It is a mistake to buy the spring hat too early, when every penny has to be counted. The fashions in hats change so often that before there is a chance to wear it another quite different shape will be far more fashionable. On the other hand, if there is a hat that is becoming and smart at any reasonable price to be found in advance of the season it is a good investment, and there is nothing more delightful than to be possessed of a smart hat when the weather suddenly turns warm. But not to be led into senseless outlay is the wiser course to pursue, and the one smart black hat bought now will solve the problem far better than to become possessed of three or four of different colors.

BUY THE TIMES

The Evening
Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"Now boys, just a moment! You've
all had your say,
While enjoying yourselves in so pleasant a way."

We've toasted our sweethearts, our friends and our wives,
We've toasted each other wishing all
merry lives:

"This one in a million and outshines
the rest;
Don't frown when I tell you this toast beats all others—
But drink one more toast, boys, a toast to 'Our Mothers!'"

One of my correspondents has asked me to tell something of the origin and meaning of "Mothers'
Day." "Mothers'
Day" was inaugurated by the churches of Minneapolis during the Chapman-Alexander evangelist campaign
there. It was suggested by Dr.

Henry A. Ostrom, whose own mother had died about a year before this time, and who felt that the young people might be especially touched and the old people honored and pleased by the observance of such a day.

"Mothers' Day" was celebrated first on April 12 and is supposed to be celebrated every year on the Sunday nearest to that day. That would bring it Sunday, April 16, this year. What effect the fact that Easter comes on that day will have, I do not know.

The idea of the evangelists was to have a day especially devoted to mothers just as "Children's Day" is devoted to the children. On this day in the churches which celebrate it a sermon is preached especially for mothers and great efforts are made by special invitation and the use of carriages and automobiles to bring out the older women who would not otherwise get there.

The flower dedicated to this day is the white pink. The churches are decorated with them. Sprays of white pinks are sent to the sick and shut-in mothers and the younger people are all supposed to wear a white pink in memory of or respect for their mothers.

Don't you think it is a beautiful idea? I do. My only wonder is that no one thought of it before.
"Mothers' Day" is primarily a church holiday, but please don't let that prevent those of you who are not affiliated with any church from feeling that it is up to you to help celebrate it.

If you still have your mother right
in the home with you, why not make April 16 a day of special kindness and thoughtfulness for her, a day when you do not say a single cross or impatient word, a day when you give some unexpected caress that will mean so much to her, and say some unexpectedly tender thing about what a very wonderful mother you happen to have.

If you are separated from your mother why not make April 16 a day
to surprise her by bridging the distance between you, if it is possible.
And if that is not possible, you can
at least write an unusually tender and loving letter that shall send a glad thrill of sweet surprise to her heart when she receives it.

Some I know are reading this and thinking, "Ah, if I only COULD do some of these things. But my mother"
—and then the eyes fill with tears of aching memory, and the heart—no matter how blameless—accuses itself. "If I had only been kinder."

Dear people, "Mothers' Day" must be a sad day for you, of course, but why not sweeten the sadness by reading your mother's Bible, going to your mother's church, and by performing your loving kindness to some other mother, "somebody's mother" as tone-

DRINK CURE A MIRACLE?

No, Just Sound Science

Many drunkards are sent to jail
when what they need is medicine.
Drink has undermined their constitutions, inflamed their stomachs and nerves, until the craving must be satisfied, if it is not removed by a scientific prescription like Samaria.

Samaria Prescription stops the craving, restores the shaking nerves, builds up the health and appetite and renders drink distasteful, even nauseous.
It is odorless and tasteless, and dissolves instantly in tea, coffee or food.
It can be given with or without the patient's knowledge.

Read what it did for Mrs. G., of Vancouver:
"I was so anxious to get my husband
cured that I went up to Harrison Drug Store, and got your remedy there. I had no trouble giving it without his knowledge. I greatly thank you for all the peace and happiness that it brought already into my home. It cost me nothing according to what he would spend in drinking. The curse of drink was putting me into my grave,
but now I feel so happy, and everything seems so different and bright.
May the Lord be with you and help you in curing the evil. I don't want my name published."

Now, if you know of any unfortunate needing Samaria Treatment, tell him or his family or friends about it. If you have any friend or relative who is forming the drink habit, help him to release himself from its clutches.
Write to-day.

A FREE TRIAL PACKAGE of Samaria
Prescription, with booklet, giving full particulars, testimonials, price,
etc., will be sent absolutely free and postpaid in plain sealed package to

COMBINED BAKING PAN.

A baking arrangement which combines four bread pans in one yet bakes
four separate loaves has been devised by an Illinois man. The advantages claimed for it are that the baker is saved the trouble of handling a number of separate receptacles. The device consists of a rectangular metal strip
large enough to inclose the tops of four pans. Along the sides are hinges which

As the latter are... the top than they are at the bottom, they drop neatly into the corner pieces and stay there until pried out by inserting
some instrument under their top edges.
Held together in this way, the four pans can be carried around and shoved
in or drawn out of the oven as easily
as one, and in bakeries or families
where several loaves of bread are made at a time they will be found a convenient arrangement.

TOMMY AND THE FLAG IN INDIA

There is a certain city in India where you may see beautiful buildings, hand-some and picturesque people, bazaars crowded with enchantment, and such a pageant of vehicles as represents the road of history from Jehu to Rolls-Royce, and such a pageant of costumes as represents the garment of time from Joseph to Peter Robinson; and still the most beautiful and beguiling and eloquent thing in all this city of dazzling bewitchment is a simple Flag, says Harold Legbie in the London Chronicle. No man, whatever his nationality, can view that Flag without respect; and no Englishman and no Scot, whatever their temperaments, can behold it without emotion. It hangs from a staff on the battered and broken tower of the most arduous ruins I have ever seen—bullet-pecked ruins of a narrow red brick, gabled arches of grey, and tall window-arches shattered by musket and cannon; ruins which are overgrown with green creepers, and whose lower arches trail masses of yellow flowers; ruins which stand on a gentle slope, surrounded by a great sweep of lawn and almost hidden by the stunted foliage of innumerable trees and flowering shrubs; ruins which face a quiet river, and confront in tranquil beauty and majestic serenity the clamor and the pride and the living energy of the city of Lucknow.

When I first approached this historic Residency it was an early morning bright with the beauty of day and soft with the tenderness of night. The grass was drenched with a thick dew; the air was fragrant with fragrance and healthful with cold; birds were singing from tree and bush whose outermost leaves showed not a tremor of movement; there was the dusk and coolness of slumbering shadows, and there the vivid and scintillating brightness of sun-reflected dew; save for the quiet singing of the birds the whole park was full to the very heavens with a cloistered silence. And the lifted Flag was almost still, a sleeping cloth of vivid red and deep blue, striped with narrow white, which hung motionless against the pale of the sky, and only fluttered at the lowest corner close to the stone of the tower. No Flag was ever yet more beautiful and calm; more eloquent of valor and more rebukeful to Caesarism; more glorious with a superb patriotism and more censorious of braggart self-aggrandizement. At the soul of Havelock to the soul of the music-hall Chauvinist, so is the Flag at the Residency of Lucknow to the waving banner of a Mafficking boastfulness. I have seen the flag of England streaming with splendor in the winds of heaven, and I have felt, like heady wine, the invigorating spell and the masculine strong magic of that glorious blood-consecrated and sanctified banner; but not until I saw it drooping against the flagstaff of the shattered Residency, so quiet and so calm and so enduring, did I feel deeply in the soul the beauty and the spirit and the nationality of its symbolism.

One saw the underground chamber where women and children, both European and native, endured the ghastly horrors of the siege; one saw the room where Lawrence was wounded to death; one saw the noble gateway under which the sweating and dust-covered saints of Havelock swung with the music of the Scottish pipes up the sloping carth to the relief of the garrison; but always it was to the dangle cloth of vivid red and deep blue motionless against the morning heavens full of a spring joyfulness, that one looked for the beauty of the scene. Not with challenge did that Flag stream above the green tree-tops, not with boastfulness and mockery did it tug at the staff; but like the Flag laid upon the dead body of a hero it witnessed in a great quiet and a solemn glory to courage and to virtue, to endurance and to strength—to the spirit of a nation.

At the Well of Cawnpore I encountered a soldier who set my thoughts flowing in another channel. I had left my gory at the entrance to the grounds enclosing this memorial, and had ascended the steps which raise one to the protecting screen circling the white angel whose eyes are for ever bent in a divine compassion upon the covered tragedy of the Well. A noise on my left caused me to turn, and from a little kiosk in the bushes I saw a soldier emerge, and buttoning his scarlet tunic, move in my direction. He was a small, thick-set, sandy-haired, and freckled Yorkshireman, wearing the uniform of the Gordon Highlanders, with a single many-clasped medal on his breast. The big white helmet was too large for him; the scarlet, yellow-collared tunic was too tight for him; the tartan trousers were too long and too baggy for him; and certainly his boots were too heavy for his feet.

He came slowly and, suddenly, across the grass, climbed the steps like a man sick of life, and with a curt nod somewhere in my direction—his collar still unfastened—began his recitation. Afterwards he opened the gate in the screen and admitted me to the interior, still reciting the awful horrors and unbearable agonies of the memorial in a voice of monotonous disgust. When he had done I said to him: "Is there any disposition of unpleasantness on the part of the natives here towards the British soldiers?" He gave me a look, and replied in broad Yorkshire: "They know better; for the simple reason that if there was we should hammer them."

He became more communicative, and presently related this story: "I never allow no native inside this screen. It's against orders. Lots of 'em come here, when they have their annual, or what-not, and some of 'em want to go inside; but I say, 'Where's your pass?'—without a pass you stop outside; this place isn't for you; it's sacred." Once a party of six arrived. I told them the story outside the screen, sparing none of the details, mind you, and then one of them said, 'Open the door and let us go in.' 'Where's your pass?' I asked. 'Never your mind,' he answers; 'I'm the heir-apparent to something or other.' He says: 'You just open the door.' 'I don't care,' I answers, 'whether you've got 1929 blooming parents; but you've got a pass, you ain't you are?' With that he produces a proper pass, and right enough he was a heir-apparent, and the pass admitted him and his suite of five to the Well. I looked it over, very carefully, and then I put the key in the lock very slowly, and then I turned round and said to him, 'Look here, you ain't you are a Christian?' 'No,' he said, 'I'm not.' 'Take your boots off,' I says. 'What for?' he asks. 'What for?' I answers. 'Don't you make us take our boots off before we go inside any of your 'oly places?' Well, I says, 'this place is sacred, sacred to women and children, the living and the dead thrown into this Well by your chance, and sacred to England.' I says, 'and you don't go inside, pass or no pass, unless you take your boots off. I'm telling you,' I says, 'and you'd better do what I tell you, quick.'

"Well, I had the pleasure of making a prince take his boots off; but that isn't quite accurate, for he made one of the dirty work for him; nevertheless, it was properly satisfactory to me to see him barefoot. Then I opened the gate, let them in, and watched 'em like a cat. Now, it was a nasty drizzling morning, and when they came out this here heir-apparent says to me, 'You're very disabliging,' he says; 'you've made me wet my feet.' 'Look here,' I says, 'in the year 1857 you chaps were disabliging to us, you were disabliging to the men of our lot, and not content with that, you was disabliging to our women and our children; and,' I says, 'if you hadn't been so disabliging in the year 1857 there wouldn't be no Well here now. I shouldn't be here to show it to you, and you wouldn't have got your feet wet.' 'He turns round as he goes away, and he says, 'I shall report you.' I wasn't going to let him go away with it, so I calls out, 'You may report me to his Majesty the King of England.' I says, 'for all the notice I shall take of it.' You see, I'm only temporary on this job; and though there's a chance I may get it regular, still, I was just thinking to myself, 'It's all right in the cold weather, but how will it be in the hot?'—half-past seven to twelve, and two till five-thirty? Jolly monotonous. But in any case I wasn't going to let him go away with it. Not me!"

At Simla I asked an officer with good opportunities for judgment, whether the British soldier had behaved out of all knowledge in the last ten or fifteen years employed a proper tact in his dealings with the natives: "Oh, they get on famously," he replied; "Tommy makes himself understood in a wonderful manner, and is a proper sahib. I assure you, both out of barracks and in barracks. But tact, Well, I think it is the other fellow who has to be busy in that direction."

So we have the solemn beauty of the Flag at Lucknow, and at Cawnpore the stubborn, honest, cheerful, and immortal Spirit.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause heartburn. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can walk with ambition. It has encouraged many mothers of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers."—Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

CRIMES CHARGED AGAINST CAMORRA

London Times Correspondent
Tells of Cuocolo and Other Murders Involved

The Rome correspondent of the London Times gives the following account of the crime on which the Camorrista trial at Viterbo is based:

"The murder was committed on June 5, 1966, and, though most of the arrests were made within a year, four years and a half have elapsed before the alleged criminals could be brought to justice. Both the victims and the persons who are accused of compassing their death were typical figures of the existing Camorra of Naples, which, though greatly fallen away from its old importance, still exerts a very considerable influence in Neapolitan life, especially among the lower classes. A proof of this is afforded in the extraordinary difficulty which the authorities have experienced in getting evidence for a crime of which the true history must have been known to thousands of people. Again, there is the strange story of the antagonistic parts played by the two different branches of the police service. The Neapolitan police—Pubblica Sicurezza—to whom the first inquiries fell, seems to have throughout abandoned obvious clues in favor of false information supplied by the Camorra itself; not only that, but when the Carabinieri, determined to strike a decisive blow at the Camorra, followed the real track with laudable energy, their conduct of the case was apparently wilfully hampered and interfered with by their colleagues of the other service.

"When, finally, the case seemed complete, and it was proposed to bring the accused to trial, it was found impossible to hold that trial in Naples, since neither juries nor witnesses could be depended upon in an environment still dominated by the Camorra. The case was first transferred to Rome, but, owing, it is said, to the want of suitable accommodation in the new palace of justice, it was finally transferred to Viterbo, distant some two hours by rail north of Rome, where there can be no doubt, but that it will be fairly tried.

"The story of the crime is otherwise simple enough. If one can trust the evidence given by the informer, a certain Abbatemaggio, himself one of the accused and a Camorrista. On June 5, 1966, the body of Gennaro Cuocolo was found on the seashore near Torre del Greco, bearing the marks of thirty-nine wounds, inflicted with stabbings, besides other bruises. The same day the body of his wife, Maria, was found in their house in the Via Nardone, also stabbed to death, with at least fourteen wounds. The room had been rifled and a watch and some jewelry were missing, but it was evident from the ferocity of the double crime that revenge, and not robbery, was the motive.

"Gennaro Cuocolo was known as a receiver of stolen goods, his wife was formerly a procuress, and the couple enjoyed the respect and consideration of their neighbors as quiet, well-to-do people, not without influence in Camorra circles. The police—Pubblica Sicurezza—began their inquiry, and reported at once that the murder was the result of a Camorra quarrel, naming four men as chiefly implicated, three of whom are now among the number standing their trial. But these men were not then arrested, and, for some unexplained reason, the police abandoned the trail, and, acting on itself, arrested two former convicts, who were proved to have nothing to do with the matter. Under the guidance of Don Ciro Vittorio the pursuit soon plunged deep into a tortuous maze of purjury and strayed far from the real culprits. Then the Carabinieri took up the running on the original scent, and, in spite of every obstacle put in their way, carried it through to the end.

"According to the evidence upon which the prosecution relies, the story is as follows: On May 26, 1966, a meeting of Camorristi was held—at a trattoria in Bagnoli, at which were present many leaders of the Camorra. Before this criminal one of these, Enrico Alfano, better known as Erricone, denounced the Cuocolos for the betrayal of a comrade, Arena, who was suffering penal servitude in consequence. The tribunal decided that Cuocolo deserved death, and that his wife had better be suppressed, she knew too much. A certain Nicolo Morra was told off to make the necessary arrangements. As the result of these Cuocolo was enticed from his house to a spot on the seashore near Torre del Greco, where he was assailed by Morra and three others—di Gennaro, Sorino and Cerrato—with weapons which corresponded to the wounds found on the body. The four jumped into a hired carriage, which they had kept waiting, and galloped back to Naples. Here Sorino left the others, and, accompanied by another man, Salvi by name, went to the Cuocolos' house in the Via Nardone, where they murdered the wife, whom they found in bed."

VICTIM OF RECENT FIRE STARTS ANEW

Dr. Dier Installs Most Modern Equipment in Office in Times Building

After suffering the loss of his entire dental equipment in the recent fire, which among others completely gutted the Five Sisters block, in which he had his parlors, H. Dier, Doctor of Dental Surgery, has now commenced to pick up the broken threads of his practice in the Times building.

His offices, on the second floor of the fine new building, are without exaggeration, a work of art in their line. The pleasant, home-like effect which greets one on entering effectually dispels all that nervousness which is usually accompanied by gruesome displays of dangerous-looking instruments, which conjure up horrible pictures in the mind and reduce one to the last stages of terror.

The walls of the waiting room are finished in a soft moss-green color and the ceiling in cream. The floor is covered with valuable Oregon rugs and handsomely upholstered chairs, among other two-inlaid with Chinese pearl. Beautifully furnished as this room is, it is completely eclipsed by the cosy little operating den. There one may receive a liberal education, for everything in the room represents the latest improvements in dental paraphernalia. It would take an hour to discover all the contrivances connected with the operating chair alone. It can be adjusted to the most comfortable fit for a stout or a thin, a tall or a short person, and with all its appliances is as comfortable as grandpa's rocker. It is a white Imperial Columbia upholstered in green plush. Then there is the antiseptic cabinet, made of white, enameled steel so that, if necessary, a hose could be turned on it without injuring the contents. The antiseptic spittoon, the flash light arrangement, which focuses a strong light on the tooth to be operated on, and the ingenious swinging tables for the instruments are just a few of the very modern dental fittings to be found in this room.

There is also a dressing room where the patient may find all conveniences such as brushes, combs, etc. In fact

Businessmen's Association of Everett Undertakes to Raise $50,000

(Times Local Wire.)

Everett, Wash., April 1.—Tired of facing a municipal deficit which they say comes as an aftermath to voting the city "dry" and losing a considerable sum represented in saloon licenses, the Everett Business Men's association has undertaken to raise $50,000 by popular subscription. Banners are being printed for street cars, windows, and posters, and the hat will be passed in every man and woman in Everett in an effort to overcome the awkward situation.

A deputation of ladies from the Camosun Chapter, Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, accompanied by Henry Croft, walked on the council last night to ask aid and support towards a celebration celebration here. Mrs. Henry Croft explained that there is no desire to interfere with the Victoria Day celebrations, but asked for an appropriation for their object of the same amount as that which goes to the Victoria Day celebration. The mayor told the deputation that the council could do nothing, but a recommendation would be left for the council to consider. The deputation was satisfied with the motion and the deputation withdrew.

TO BE EXTENDED

Nine Hundred to Be Added to Equipment—New Exchange in Prospect

A splendid testimony to the growth of Victoria is to be found in the simple fact that the B. C. Telephone Company has had to make provision for additional equipment to cope with the steady growth of the service. The addition will run to about 900 extra 'phones. At the present time there are 4,200 telephones in operation, an increase of 500 over a year ago.

Tenders have been called for the new central exchange building which is proposed to be erected on the corner of Blanchard and Johnson streets, and it is expected that the contract will be let within a few days.

J. A. Whan, one of the company's engineers, is at present in the city endeavoring to secure the necessary agreements with the owners of property in the area where it is proposed to install the underground system. As soon as these agreements are ratified the construction work will be commenced. The area to be served in this manner is that bounded by Blanchard, Humboldt and Cormorant streets and the waterfront.

RECOMMENDATION BY

ENGINEER C. H. TOPP

Storage Reservoir South of Shawnigan Lake Would Give Early Supply to City

C. H. Topp, the engineer appointed by the Council to make the survey to Sooke in connection with the Sooke Lake water system, and whose appointment was vetoed by Mayor Morley, wrote a letter to the council, read last night, saying the field work on which he was engaged is almost completed, in connection with the tunnel line from the north of Sooke Lake to the Saanich Arm, and that he has discovered a large valley, lying to the south of Shawnigan Lake, between Sooke and the Saanich Arm, in which is a stream of clear water.

Engineer Topp recommends that this valley be used as a storage reservoir. To do this, he says, will save a large sum of money at the present time. He says that the eastern end of the tunnel be constructed from Saanich Arm to the valley in question, and that the water shed of this valley can be used to supply the city with water immediately, and that the other tunnel to Sooke Lake need not be constructed until the city has exhausted the temporary system proposed by the engineer. If his plan is carried out, he says, only half the tunnel work will be needed at present.

The council last night referred the communication to the water commissioner and the city engineer for report in full to the incoming council.

LONDON IS CURIOUS.
 More Booklets on Vancouver Island Sent to Meet Demand.

So great has been the demand in London for the more recently published booklets of the Victoria branch of the Vancouver Island Development League that it has been found necessary to send on two more cases. One of these will be sent to J. H. Turner, the agent-general for British Columbia, and the other to George McL. Brown, of the Canadian Pacific railway information bureau.

Subscription renewals for the next two years continue to come into the head office. That of A. W. McCurdy, the president, which was for $200, was received yesterday.

The Clayquot Sound branch of the league will receive to-night, per the Tees, the circular letters descriptive of that locality which have been printed in Victoria. The circulars contain all the information that the most cautious of prospective settlers could desire, and they will be sent to such on inquiries being received. It is expected that the circulars will do much to advertise that part of the Island as it never has been advertised before.

LAST OF SONGHEES.

Will Leave Old Reserve During Next Week For Esquimalt.

During the course of next week the last Indian will have left the Songhees reserve to take up his new quarters in the recently acquired reserve at Esquimalt, and his anomalous presence in the heart of the city will very soon be less than a memory.

About the middle of the week it is expected that a general exodus will take place. By that time they will have received compensation in cash from the provincial treasury for the value of all the improvements made on their old habitation. These improvements have been appraised at $20,000 and the government will pay the Indians this sum in addition to the surrender bonus to the head of each family previously agreed upon.

EDMONDS' RECITAL.

A varied programme will be presented by Paul Edmonds on Wednesday next at the Institute hall.

Among the vocal items are numbers from the "Messiah" and "Elijah," songs from Tennyson's "Maud," a group of Irish songs by Sir Charles Stanford. Mr. Edmonds' own settings of some of Thomas Barnes' poems in the Dorset dialect, and a dramatic scene, "Tristram and Isolt," by the clever American composer, A. N. Forester.

Miss Lillian Hargerty will sing the ever-popular "Beloved, It is Morn," and Denza's "May Morning" while Hagen Hohenberg, the Danish pianist, with solos by Chopin, Greig, Neupert and Rachmaninoff, will provide relief to the vocal side of the programme.

Applications were opened last night by the council for the clerkship in the city treasurer's office, and on the third ballot J. Andrews received the appointment, getting a majority vote.

An Expensive Game For You

If you see a chair in one store marked $3.00 and in another store you see the same chair marked $1.98, your first conclusion is that the first store is high.

Some merchants take advantage of this.

They mark a ridiculously low price on things whose prices people can compare by shopping around. Then on other things they boost the prices unreasonably high. You are misled by this, and you pay too much for the most of your goods.

In this store everything is marked at a uniform small profit.

You don't pay the slightest bit higher per cent when your purchase is $100 than when it is 10c.

Do you like our way?

We have the largest assortment of all kinds of chairs at reasonable prices for you to select from.

Chairs are priced this way:

CHILDREN'S CHAIRS 75¢
 CANE-SEATED CHAIR $3.50
 REED ROCKERS $4.00
 DINING-ROOM CHAIRS, solid oak, upholstered in leather $4.00
 PARLOR CHAIRS, upholstered seats at each $7.50

Our Davenport

We sell a great number of Davenports each week.

Nearly every woman who buys a Davenport here says something nice about our reasonable prices.

Then a few weeks later she comes in and says something very nice about the quality of the Davenport she bought.

Then she tells her next door neighbor—and we sell another Davenport.

Really, they are the best Davenports any one ever sold for as little money.
